Ron Kopp, Middletown dairy farmer, faces TV cameras and explains his problems with discarded cans and bottles, including the loss of a top producing cow.

Spend 5 cents to save a cow

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

MIDDLETOWN — The year of 1976 was a memorable one for agriculture.

It was the Bicentennial Year and tributes were pouring out for the "embattled farmers who fired the shots heard round the world" and founded a nation 200 years before.

Agriculture was booming and machinery companies quit running equipment ads because they didn't want to create any more demand that they couldn't fill.

The machinery that was available was allocated to dealers and farmers scrambled to snap it up.

But for Ron Kopp, dairy farmer located just off Rt. 283 near the Pa. Holstein farm, it was memorable from another standpoint.

On June 17, 1976, he lost one of his best cows to hardware disease

"I came out in the morning and she was just lying there," he recalls.

"In the haylage in the feed bunk we found a shredded can

"She hadn't been ill so it must have been the only cause.

"She was one of our best producing cows."

Kopp recalled this painful memory at a press conference Wednesday convened by the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association to drum up support for the mandatory deposit beverage container laws that have been introduced in the Pa House and Senate.

Kopp, who farms with his brother,Jay and father, Howard, hasn't lost any cows since then, but he's had continuing problems with cans and bottles.

Recently, he had to replace a front tractor tire and have a rear one repaired due to bottles The direct cost was about $150, plus downtime on the equipment and lost time in the fields

"The other day I was out in the field and saw this car going by with someone hanging out the window," he said

"The guy winged a bottle at the speed limit sign along the field They like to throw them at the signs."

Kopp and Keith Eckel, PFA president, walked along the road next to the exercise yard, and collected a variety of soda and beer cans and bottles for the television cameras at the on-farm press conference

"It would almost pay me to hire someone to just pick these things up," Kopp remarked

Eckel explained the purpose of the proposed law now in effect in several states that requires a five-cent mandatory deposit on beverage containers, particularly soda and beer cans and bottles, to discourage roadsides and farmers fields from being the garbage can for passing drinkers

Suffolk named Ephrata winner

BY LAURA ENGLAND

EPHRATA — It may have been raining cats and dogs at the Ephrata Fair Wednesday night, but a stylish group of lambs competed for top awards despite the constant downpour.

Under a roof with two open sides, the rain threatening to dampen the entire show arena, 13-year-old Heidi Fisher lead her 112-pound Suffolk lamb to the championship title.

A daughter of Bill and Dee Fisher, East Earl, Heidi won the overall honors for the first time. She raised her champion lamb as a junior agriculture project at Garden Spot High School. An eighth grade student, Heidi is a member of the seventh and eighth grade Ag Club.

Capturing reserve market lamb laurels was 15-year-old Lori Martin, Narvon. A member of the Grassland FFA Chapter at Garden Spot High School, Lori competed in the contest for the first time this Market Comment: Prices unchanged. Offerings of live are slightly more available but noted as only adequate in most quarters. Canner pack movement remains fairly good but some traders indicate that further processors are now starting to use some broiler meat in place of fowl meat. Undertone is generally steady.

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, September 22
Report supplied by USDA

Market Comment: Ready to cook movement on whole birds is mixed as some plants note fairly good movement due to scheduled retail promotions, while other plants find the demand only fair. Clearances are generally satisfactory overall but additional product has become more available with occasional load of 4 lb. and over sizes noted around. Movement on parts has slowed down overall and clearances have become more difficult. Overall slaughter is moderate heavy. Live supplies adequate at desirable to occas. nally heavier than desired weights. Undertone is weak.

Today's L.T.L. asking prices are .04 lower on U.S. Grade A at 49-53 cents.

Estimated slaughter of broiler tryers in Delmarva (000).

Is it fair?

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

Fair season is in its final big month in Pennsylvania.

While we're all in favor of perpetuating the agricultural nature of fairs throughout the state, we'd be remiss if we didn't make a couple of observations. These observations are not intended as a criticism of any single fair but are presented to prompt possible local review in these times of tough economic conditions not only on the farm, but throughout agribusiness and in Harrisburg, too.

Last week, single exhibitors walked off with the majority of premium money in the colored breed shows at a county fair. In one of the shows, there was only one exhibitor. Total premiums won by these dominant exhibitors ranged from $450 to more than $600 each. In a couple of cases, the top winners weren't even from the county where the fair was held.

Are shows at local and county fairs intended to be such money-making ventures for exhibitors? Obviously, it must pay these people to follow the fair schedule week after week. In the case of some such exhibitors, I'm sure that a sizable portion of their farm income comes from the fair circuit.

Sure, we recognize the reason cited for keeping such shows to encourage retention of the breed and its genetic base. And, we recognize that without state premium money the ag segment of many more fairs would disappear. Also, we don't mean to only point a finger at dairy -- dominant single exhibitors are just as evident in hogs, beef or sheep.

But in these hard economic times, should state taxpayers be required to help subsidize fair show strings out of general tax revenues? Yes, fair premium money this year was supplemented out of the general fund since horse racing revenues were down due to the recession.

And, it's not small sums of money that go into the fair premiums. This year's state budget provides for some $700,000 from the general fund for fair premiums. The total fair amount, including horse racing money, could total $2.4 million.

If general fund money is to be used for agriculture, can it be better used for promotional efforts that can have long-range benefits for all of agriculture?

I think it only fair that all local fairs be required to adopt the sliding scale method of awarding premiums in which a lower premium is automatically paid in classes which don't have a minimum number of exhibitors.

Here in Lancaster County, the fair season is about at its halfway point.

We're well aware that we're not the first to repeat the following point and won't be the last.

For the top ag county in the state, it's still a crying shame that Lancaster County can't get back together for a countywide fair. Each community still goes its own way -- cutting down on the participation by commercial exhibitors and support by buyers.

It's just another example of how fractured and split agriculture is.

If Lancaster County agriculture can't get together on something like a fair, how can it ever hope to get together on important issues, such as the survival of the family farm or possible pollution of farmland by a proposed hazardous waste dump.

Background Scripture:
John 1:14-18; 14:8-11; Hebrews 1:1-4; 1 John 1:1-4.
Devotional Reading:
John 1: 14-18.

One of the standard philosophical arguments for the existence of God is our continuing discovery that in every corner of the world there is testimony and evidence that virtually all peoples have believed in some kind of Higher Power, Ultimate Source, or Ground of Being–to use just a few of the terms that have been used to designate the reality you and I call God.

For some people this conviction has been founded upon a perception of God as creator. For others, this perception has been manifested as the experience of God in history. Still others have perceived God as the source of morality, particularly through the pronouncements of prophets and lawgivers.

Various Ways

Since my first days in the Christian ministry I have come to realize that all religions tend to point us in the same direction. Although initially I was quite insensitive to the value of other religions. I have since discovered much of value in the teachings and experiences of religions other than Christianity. God has said some important things to us through Islam, Hinduism, Buddhism, Confucianism, and so forth. There are many, many different paths to the one God. Some of them I can understand and appreciate and some I cannot. (That is a reflection upon me, not the other religions.)

Yet, as my understanding and appreciation of the value of other religions has grown over the years, I have come to an even deeper appreciation for and attachment to the revelation of God I find in Jesus Christ. I cannot choose for others or even judge the value of their choices. For myself, however, I am even more convinced of the magnitude and depth of the fullness of the God I find in Jesus Christ For me, then, the words of Hebrews have a very special meaning:

> In many and various ways
> God spoke of old to our > fathers by the prophets, > but in these last days he > has spoken to us by a Son, > whom he appointed the > heir of all things, through > whom he also created the > world. He reflects the > glory of God and bears > the very stamp of his nature...(1:1-3a)

Seeing The Father

Ironically, it is my faith in Christ that helps me to appreciate the value of other religions. The God I encounter in Christ is not the parochial tribal God so many people try to present as "Christian," but a God so big and great that only the whole world and all its peoples are a creation big enough and great enough to be his. There are and will continue to be lots of questions which my faith leaves vague or unanswered, but, if I want to know the essential nature of God, I know I have only to look to Jesus Christ to find the key to life in this cosmos. I know fully what Jesus means when he says, "He who has seen me has seen the Father."

To Observe National Farm Safety Week

The proclamation of September 18-24 as National Farm Safety Week is very important during this busy corn harvest and fall planting season.

This year Farm Safety Week focuses on the future: the protection and safety training of our younger generation to whom we must look to take over the tremendous job of feeding and clothing our nation and many others around the world.

According to preliminary National Safety Council estimates, agricultural work-connected accidents were responsible for about 1,800 deaths and 180,000 disabling injuries in 1982. Many of these casualties were children or youth.

Accidents have no respect for age. About one person in three killed accidentally in the U.S. is age 24 or younger. Accidents lead as a cause of death for all persons ages 1 through 38.

Safety is something we should practice all the time, but we need a gentle reminder sometimes. Let's have a safe harvest season and a safe year.

To Reduce Egg Breakage

Many egg producers are not aware of their breakage losses. You could be very surprised how much. Some poultry producers do not realize how many eggs they are losing because they do not keep track of them. In studies where this has been checked carefully, we find the percentage of eggs broken ranging from 2% to 5% up to 20%.

With a flock of 30,000 layers averaging 70% production, a loss of 4% is 84,000 eggs or 7,000 dozen a year. This loss comes to $4,900 when eggs sell for 70 cents per dozen.

Check nests or cages for needed repair. Often we find eggs broken right in the cages. Check the egg trays. If they are bent, they can break many eggs. Many times plastic bumpers placed on the egg tray will reduce breakage. Careful handling will reduce breakage if eggs are gathered by hand.

Take time to check these factors and other to reduce breakage. It very well could be the difference between profit and loss.

To Store Pesticides Safely

Most producers are about finished with their spray materials for the year. Many of these can be held over until next year with good results. However, it is always best to purchase only enough for one season at a time. When storing spray materials, always keep them in their original container and away from children, pets and livestock. It is best to have a separate room or building for pesticide storage. Wettable powders are easy to store; however emulsions and liquids may be harmed by freezing weather. producers are urged to follow the label and instructions in this respect. It may be necessary a delay in the payments of dairy farmers who were left unpaid when Glen & Mohawk defaulted on its obligations.

NEDCO General Manager Robert Forsythe says in the article that a disagreement between Dairylea and the New York State Commissioner of Agriculture and Markets over Dairylea's claim against the Producers Security Fund was the reason the Fund had not yet issued checks to dairy farmers.

This is a classic case of trying to point a finger to draw attention away from yourself.

Here are the facts:

First, New York State Commissioner Joseph Gerace has stated publicly that the disagreement between his office and Dairylea is not affecting payment of producers by the Fund.

Second, the Commissioner sent out a news release with the following statement in it: "Commissioner Gerace said he was disappointed by NEDCO's failure to provide protection for the producers who are owed money by Glen & Mohawk. He noted that NEDCO did advance money to the producers, but long after other milk cooperatives had taken action."

Third, the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets currently has a suit against NEDCO because of its failure to pay about $1.7 million owed to some 89 farmers who belong to the Dolgeville Producers Cooperative. The Commissioner says that NEDCO owes the money to these producers for milk delivered during May and June because NEDCO took over their contract when it took over the Glen & Mohawk plant.

Fourth, when Glen & Mohawk failed to pay for May and June milk, Dairylea and Eastern both paid their producers for milk shipped. We expect to collect this money from the Security Fund when that issue is finally settled...but in the meantime, our members did not miss a check. NEDCO, on the other hand, did NOT pay the producers it required to sign up to four new co-ops in April and May in order to be able to continue shipping to the Fultonville Plant which NEDCO was then in the process of buying. The three million dollars of advance payments about which NEDCO is sending out news releases are simply the total of weekly payments for milk already delivered to NEDCO at its Fultonville (formerly Glen & Mohawk) plant. Not one cent of it is for milk delivered during the May 1 - June 25 period.

It seems to me that NEDCO could better use its time finding a way to pay producers rather than falsely accusing another cooperative of "delaying" payment...particularly when the other cooperative has long since paid its producers, just as NEDCO should have.

to keep some of them in a heated building. Be sure they are not near feed supplies because accidents can happen. Pesticides kept in a room or building under a lock is a good way to prevent costly mistakes and tragedies.

To Control Weeds in New Alfalfa

Recent growing conditions have favored the growth of both alfalfa and weeds. In many cases the broadleaf weeds will crowd out the small alfalfa plants, if not controlled. Early seedings of alfalfa without a nurse crop need some weed protection. One suggested practice is to spray with 2,4-DB when the weeds are one inch tall. This will knock out the broadleaf weeds without harming the alfalfa plants. If the weeds are permitted to develop larger, they will be hard to kill without hurting the alfalfa. Alfalfa seeding is an expensive practice; this investment needs protection by controlling the weeds. Many good stands of alfalfa have been ruined by excessive weed growth.

Papaya compound stops velvetleaf

PEORIA, Ill. — A compound extracted from papaya seed stops germination and seedling growth of velvetleaf, a common corn-field weed, but does not affect corn.

In USDA laboratory studies here, less than 90 parts of the papaya compound in one million parts of water, "completely inhibited" velvetleaf seed germination. Rebecca B. Wolf, plant physiologist, says, "Corn was unaffected even at concentrations of almost 150 parts per million of the compound."

Wolf and Gayland F. Spencer, research chemist, extracted the compound, benzyl isothiocyanate, from ground papaya seed with solvents in the first study reported from a new search at the Northern Regional Research Center for natural seed germination inhibitors.

"We don't want to suggest that benzyl isothiocyanate would be useful or practical in the field since we have no knowledge of that sort of application," Wolf says. "Greenhouse and field studies are necessary to determine, for example, whether seedlings that survive the treatment in the laboratory would be viable in the field." Information on dosage, longevity and side effects would be needed also before the papaya compound could be used.

The concentration that stopped velvetleaf germination, 90 parts per million, reduced soybean germination 28 percent, Wolf says Velvetleaf, also called butterprint and piemarker, Abutilon theophrasti, grows in soybean and corn fields throughout most of the U.S. Agriculture Handbook 366, "Selected Weeds of the U.S.," indicates it is "of great economic importance" in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Tennessee, the Virginias and parts of adjoining states.

The same concentration of papaya compound that killed 3-day old velvetleaf seedlings, about 60 parts in one million parts of water, reduced weed seed germination 72 percent. It reduced soybean germination 11 percent.

"Many plants produce chemicals that are harmful to other species and help to reduce competition in their natural habitats," Wolf says. The benzyl isothiocyanate found in papaya, Carica papaya, is found also in the cabbage family, Cruciferae, and in the nasturtium family, Tropaeolaceae.

Unique is the word for Devereux Soleil Farms

BY LAURA ENGLAND

DOWNINGTOWN — Unique. That's the word Conrad "Connie" Grove uses to describe the overall operation of Devereux Soleil Farms in Chester County.

"It's one of the most unique operations in the country," says Grove who's been managing the farm since 1959.

Not only does Devereux Soleil Farms house a school for exceptional children, but it boasts a Historic Herd of 700 high quality, purebred Angus cattle.

Devereux Soleil is a combination of five farms located in the scenic countryside of Downingtown. The farm was founded as a treatment center for emotionally disturbed and mentally retarded children and adults. Through therapeutic, educational, vocational, recreational and home life programs, Devereux strives to place their students into community living.

As a back-up to their therapeutic treatment, the students participate in a farm program, learning the fundamentals of farming through first-hand experience. This is where Connie Grove and his farm crew enter the picture.

On the 1600 acres that comprise the operation, farm manager Grove maintains a herd of 700 purebred Angus. Management procedures are convienently broken into five areas: feed test, cow herd, crops, feedlot and butcher shop.

In the feed test program, the top bull calves are placed on a 140 day test under the Pinpointer 4000 systems. Through this system, individual feed consumption is electronically measured daily, and the bulls are weighed every 28 days.

The bulls are placed on test after weaning and during the winter months, Grove explains.

By using this system, rate of gain and feed efficiency can be determined. These are two highly inheritable traits that help determine the quality of the bull, Grove says.

The feed test at Devereux began in 1977 with 30 bulls on test. Now, 60 bulls are tested each year with 15 animals on one of the four electronic machines. Of these bulls, 40 are from the farm and the remaining belong to other cattleman. By testing other bulls, Grove says he can get a good comparison of his bulls and see the differences in feed conversion and gain.

During the testing period, the bulls are fed a ration of chopped alfalfa hay, corn, oats, and soybean. The amount of feed eaten is weighed electronically when the bull enters the feed shoot. A tag with a transmitter is placed in the bulls ear and the signals, the bull's number, is picked up and recorded when he eats.

From the data recorded, Grove can determine the fastest growing and most efficient bull calves. But his performance testing doesn't end there.

Raising quality heifers is another priority, Grove says. A herd of 300 brood cows, the cows selected for their ability to raise and mother healthy, fast-growing calves, is used for production purposes. At two years of age, the heifers are bred to the top two or three bulls in the Devereux breeding program.

While most of the heifers and cows are bred to home-grown bulls, Grove bred about one-third of his herd artificially this year using Sire Summary tested bulls.

In his breeding program, Grove maintains a live calving percentage of 96.7 percent. This high percentage can be attributed to the goals he outlines for his herd.

"I like to see cows that are not too fat," he says, "and you need a good nutrition program. Daily observation of cows is needed, and we cull out any problem cows."

Over 700 purebred Angus cattle are raised on the 1600 acres that comprise Devereux Soleil Farms in Chester County.

The problem cows Grove is referring to are those that are open in the fall and have difficulty in calving. By culling out these cows, a farmer can have a more trouble-free herd and get rid of genetic calving problems, he says.

Grove says he likes to see cattle that possess muscle and meat beef quality. He says he's not as concerned about size as are other breeders.

"It takes more feed to winter a larger cow," he explains, "and there isn't much difference in the weaning size of a calf born to a 1200-pound cow as compared to a 1600-pound cow."

By raising a smaller animal, Grove says he gets a more suitable market carcass. A 650 to 750 pound carcass suits most markets, he explains, and you can get top dollar for your meat.

"If you go above this rate, you begin to limit your market," he says.

At Devereux, the cattle are marketed year round and a smaller percentage of the breeding stock is sold. The steers raised on the farm are not sold through the livestock markets, Grove says, but through the butcher shop that the school runs.

At weaning, the steers and the lower quality heifers are placed in a separate feedlot and are fed to a finishing size of 1150 to 1200 pounds. The 400 medium-sized frame cattle reach a choice grade in less time than larger frame cattle, Grove explains, and more cattle can be put through the facility per year.

Eight to 10 animals are butchered per week under federal inspection, Grove explains. It is through the butcher shop and the selling of breeding stock that Devereux makes its greatest farm profit, he adds.

Before the steers are placed in the feedlot, they are pastured with their mothers as are the heifers. At weaning, the steers are taken to the feedlot along with the low quality heifers. The remaining heifers are wintered together and later used as breeding stock.

Grove places a strong emphasis on his breeding stock. The traits he breeds for are fertility, confirmation of animal, and longevity.

Fertility is important, he says, because the animal has to pay for herself. "We like to breed the heifers at two years of age," Grove says. "It takes two and a half full years before the heifer starts paying for herself."

Grove says he also looks for structural soundness and an animal with a "middle of the road" type. Herdsman Ted Teaford adds that pendulum genetics is swinging back to the middle where medium-sized cows are more desirable.

Longevity in the breeding animal is also a favorable trait. Many of the cattle at Devereux are up to 15 years of age, Grove explains, and if they still have a high performance ratio they will remain in the herd.

"It's a savings to the operation if a cow can go that long and continue to pull her own," he says.

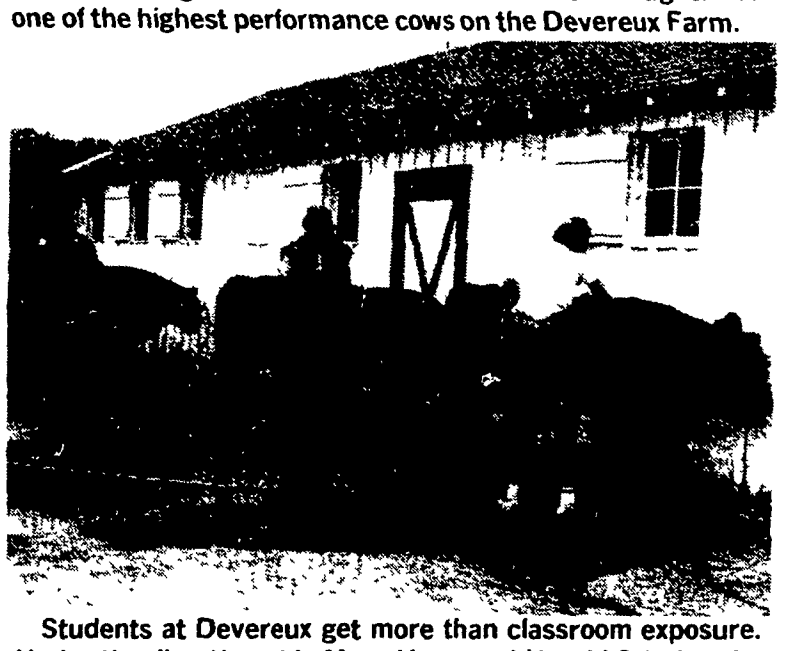
To put a final touch to the breeding and market programs at Devereux, Grove keeps an efficent record-keeping system. The data from the Pinpoint test is important to the breeding program as is performance ratios of the brood cows. In addition, Grove records carcass data to help single out the sire groups with better carcass producing ability.

Grove says you need a hard look at efficiency to keep up with other livestock operations. To help gain this efficiency, a strong crew of farms hands helps. Along with herdsman Ted Teaford, a graduate of Penn State, Jack Pechart, Bill Hayes, Willis Shanpz and Doug Howe help run the cow herds and cropping operation. Doc Furlong and Harold Hannum are responsible for the small feedlot pig farm, while Clint Cooper, Ken Keim and George Kachew run the butcher shop.

With help from the hired hands, along with the work the Devereux students complete as part of their school curriculum, Connie Grove is able to keep the working of the whole farm in perspective. His goal is to raise a quality animal from conception to the dinner plate.

Raising quality heifers such as #1458, front, is just one goal of farm manager Conrad Grove. This heifer is a daughter of one of the highest performance cows on the Devereux Farm.

Devereux Farm manager Connie Grove checks over a readout from the Pinpointer 4000 system used to electronically weigh the amount of feed eaten by the Angus bulls.



Students at Devereux get more than classroom exposure. Under the direction of LaMaur Howe and Harold Schultz, the students get first hand experience in fitting and showing the Angus cattle as well as learning to do various farm chores.

High quality cuts of meat are the end product of the farming business at Devereux. The cattle are butchered in the school's own butcher shop located at the Devereux Brandywine Campus on Devereux Road in Glenmoore.

"Those brown beer bottles are the worst," Kopp said.

They seem to be so much tougher. They don't completely crush when you drive over them. The jagged edges just tear the tires up.

The two bills being supported by the PFA are H.B. 1341, sponsored by Rep. Russell Letterman, and S.B. 463, sponsored by Sen. Edward Helfrick. Both bills are in committee.

Farmers are paying a high price for being a convenient place to dump bottles, cans, and other litter along highways and in our fields, Eckel said.

The saddest price and the one that affects them most personally is the loss of the animals.

Even after seven years, Kopp can vividly attest to that.

Her name had been Jan.

She was a milking leader in the Kopp herd. The previous year she had milked over 20,000 pounds, more than 3,000 above her herdmates.

Now, in addition to the painful memory, she's just a notation in the DHIA records.

Died 6-17-76.

Pa. Jersey breeders donate cattle to Bolivia

BY TRISH WILLIAMS

LANCASTER — Eight purebred Jersey cattle, donated by Pennsylvania Jersey breeders, are being prepared for shipment from Pennsylvania to Bolivia, through the Heifer Project International.

The eight animals, four heifers and four bulls, were gathered last week at the Holstein Barn in Middletown. During the past week they have undergone a number of tests and vaccinations, and are tenatively scheduled to be flown to Bolivia on October 12.

"The Heifer Project has been working in this part of Bolivia now for more than 25 years," said John Dieterly, Mid Atlantic director of the Heifer Project. "Our initial work in that area was simply the distrubution of local dairy heifers to the neediest families in the highland areas."

Previous importations of Jerseys, however, have left numerous animals which can be identified and located, but which are of only ¼ to ½ Jersey blood. Purebreed lines have not been continued because of the lack of new bloodlines — the results has been either inbreeding or crossing outside the breed.

According to Dieterly, the Jersey breed has adapted well to the tropical climate, and is able to cope well with the high temperature.

The bulls from this shipment, in addition to breeding the purebred imported heifers, will be used on local criolla type and Zebu type animals with good udder formation and rich milk which is excellent for home consumption or cheese making. This milk is highly appreciated by the people and demands a premium price in local village sale.

The imported animals will be placed in distinct locations with local farmers, with the arrangement that two prue animals will be returned to the project for each pair placed, and furthermore that ¼ of the subsequent purebred offspring will be offered to the project for a reasonable price, and ½ of the crossbred females will be offered likewise to the project for subsequent placement with campesino families.

The eight Pennsylvania Jersey breeders that have donated cattle to Bolivia are: Lester E. Martin, Chambersburg; Jake Myer, Bethel; Ralph Heffner, Grove; Ruth Martin, Ephrata; George and Doris Hough, Peach Bottom; Charles and Betsy Wollaston, Toughkenamon; Bill Ulrich, Quarryville; and J. Bruce and Coralie Leiby, Hamburg.

Top poultry judging team

The Pennsylvania team, composed of three FFA students from Lancaster County, placed first among 15 teams in poultry judging competition at the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield, Mass.

Included on the team, from the left, are Rodney Nissley, Penn Manor, who finished third individually in the competition; Kent Halsey, Garden Spot High School, ninth; and Steve Fox, Cloister FFA at Ephrata, who was second. The team was accompanied to the contest by Charles Ackley, coach and vo-ag teach at Ephrata.

Expanding export markets for Pa. ag products

BY TRISH WILLIAMS

SUMMERDALE — Pennsylvania produces an abundance of the kind of top quality food and agricultural products that are in demand throughout the world. Yet, last year foreign export of Pennsylvania agricultural and food products was limited to about 3.8 percent of total production.

The reason, according to Gretchen Anderson, is that other countries and states in the past have been much more aggressive in finding and securing foreign export markets for their agricultural and food products. Ms. Anderson made this statement Thursday at the Southcentral Region Export Expansion Workshop sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Ms. Anderson is the newly appointed chief of the Export Division of PDA's Bureau of Agricultural Development. The Ag Development Bureau is the result of a restructuring of the former Bureau of Rural Affairs. The change came about because Secretary of Agriculture, Penrose Hallowell, felt one of PDA's top priorities should be finding new markets for Pennsylvania farmers and food producers, said Ms. Anderson.

Thursday's exporting workshop focused primarily on how to find and secure new foreign markets.

Ms. Anderson stressed the importance of new foreign markets, and expansion of existing markets, not only to the agricultural sector, but also to persons in the food processing and distribution system.

In the past, the United States has been much better at exporting raw agricultural commodities than processed products, said Ms. Anderson. Value added by processing these raw commodities into food products ready for consumption before export creates many more jobs and brings in much more revenue than export of the raw commodity.

The Middle East is one foreign market that has grown tremendously in the past decade. Aggressive European agricultural marketers have taken a large share of this market, while we watched.

The Bureau of Agriculture Development is taking a new orientation to ag exports. Ms. Anderson said, they plan to increase exports over last year's $565 million, by working to encourage new firms to export, encouraging larger firms already exporting to expand into new markets, and by helping to develop new products for export.

Increasing export markets is also a top priority of the USDA. Debra Henke, representing the Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS) of the USDA, explained that the key to the limited export problem is to link buyers from around the world with suppliers here in the United States.

The Foreign Agricultural Service has primary responsibility for the USDA's overseas programs - in particular market intelligence, market access, and market development.

In order to provide U.S. farmers and traders with information on world agricultural production and trade that can be used to adjust to changes in world demand for U.S. farm products, FAS maintains a worldwide agricultural intelligence and reporting system through its attache service.

The attache service consists of a team of roughly 100 U.S. professional agriculturalists, posted at about 70 American embassies around the world, encompassing more than 110 countries. These attaches represent the Secretary of Agriculture and handle all matters of trade, information needs, food aid, technical programs, and other agricultural endeavors.

Most of the market development in foreign countries is done through this network of attaches. Several systems have been developed to aid the attaches in expeditously linking buyers with suppliers.

Agnet is one such system. When an attache learns of a foreign buyer who is looking for a certain food or agricultural product, he immediately reports this information via telecommunications to the Washington, D.C. FAS office. There a U.S. supplier is matched to the order, and is put in contact with the foreign buyer. Ms. Henke reported of one recent instance where a foreign buyer and U.S. supplier were matched and in contact with one another within 24 hours.

This networking is done through several sales aides for exporters. Trade Opportunity Referral Service (TORS), is a computerized, direct-mail service, to U.S. suppliers, linking them with foreign buyers.

"Export Briefs" is a weekly trade letter containing all inquiries received each week; it is best suited to exporters and trade associations interested in a range of products.

"Contacts," a monthly newsletter containing information from U.S. companies interested in exporting agricultural products, is sent to all agricultural attaches for dissemination to the foreign buyers. This program is particularly useful for new-to-market firms or new products.

Ms. Henke urged firms wanting to export to take part in trade exhibitions and international food expositions.

A film was shown, "How Not To Exhibit Yourself," which explained the do's and don'ts of exhibiting in large expositions.

Dwight Summers, president of Charles G. Summers of New Freedom, warned that much preparation is needed for exhibiting in such a show to make it profitable. But added, that it is a great opportunity to meet a large number of buyers you otherwise would never have met. Summers was awarded the the Governor's "E" Award for excellence in exporting.

Summers exports canned produce and a complete of other food items throughout the Middle East, and in South Africa, and parts of the Caribbean.

Summers said, that working the foreign markets is very similiar to working the markets here at home. He stressed the importance of traveling abroad and meeting the buyers to assure them of your sincere interest in a long term marketing agreement.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture came to the workshop to state his commitment to finding new markets for Pennsylvania farmers and food producers. He said that he is in the planning stages of another overseas trade mission scheduled for next February and March to the Middle East. Hallowell said, he is most willing to work with agricultural and food product suppliers on a one to one basis to assist them in developing export markets.

MILK MARKET NEWS

Dairy Farmers Will Receive $13.59 For August Milk

NEW YORK — Dairy farmers who supplied milk plants regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during August will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $13.59 per hundredweight (29.2 cents per quart). Market Administrator Thomas A Wilson also stated that the price was $13.12 in July 1983 and $13.59 in August 1982. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

For the second month in a row, the butterfat test (3.499504 percent) was below the 3.5 percent standard. Prior to this year, the August butterfat test had never dropped below the standard.

The seasonal incentive fund returned a total of $3,381,668.50, or $.353 per hundredweight, to the dairy farmers' uniform price for August. This fund was generated by reducing the uniform price paid to producers during the high-production spring months.

A total of 17,564 dairy farmers supplied the New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Area with 957,892,471 pounds of milk during August 1983. This was an increase of 6.6 percent (about 59 million pounds) from last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $130,430,949 10. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer

Regulated milk dealers (handlers) used 359,296,571 pounds of milk for Class I, 37 5 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test and skim milks. For August 1983, handlers paid $14.75 per hundredweight (31.7 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $14.67 a year ago.

The balance, 62.5 percent, was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream and yogurt. Handlers paid $12.58 for this milk.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For July 1983, a differential of 17.0 cents was applied to the price for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received within the 201-210 mile zone from New York City

Adams County cow named Benchmark dam

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Of the 525 Benchmark Dams recognized by the American Polled Hereford Association this year, one is a Pennsylvania cow owned by an Adams County cattleman.

Spring Bottom Farm (SBF) Royal Vetrss 014, owned by Frank B. Darcey, Fairfield, was named to the elite group by the American Polled Hereford Association. Vetrss will be among the other 525 Benchmark Dams listed in the November Polled Hereford World.

Benchmark Dams are recognized for "the consistent, superior productivity essential to efficient beef production." To be eligible for recognition, the cow must have produced at least three calves, with the first born prior to turning 25 months of age.

All calves must have weaning data submitted to the Guide Lines Program. The average 205-day weight of the calves must rank in the top 25 percent of the owner's herd. The cow must also have had a calf during the period from Jan 1, 1982, through March 1, 1983 and must have maintained a 365-day calving interval.

Moisture still considered short in Pa.

HARRISBURG — Scattered showers moved through the commonwealth early in the week ending Sept. 18, but precipitation amounts were not enough to relieve the drought conditions in most areas, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Topsoil moisture was rated short by 80 percent of Crop Service reporters and adequate by 20 percent. In the northern region it was rated short by 80 percent and adequate by 20 percent, and in the central region it was rated short by 77 percent and adequate by 23 percent.

In the southern region, the driest portion of the state, topsoil moisture was rated short by 86 percent of the reporters and adequate by 14 percent.

By the end of the week, 48 percent of the corn for grain crop was in the dent stage and 15 percent was mature. Last year, 56 percent of the crop was in dent and 15 percent was mature, while the five-year average for this time period was 57 percent in the dent stage and 18 percent mature.

In the northern region of the state, 43 percent was in the dent stage and 12 percent was mature. In the central region 40 percent was in the dent stage and 18 percent was mature, while in the southern region of the state 74 percent of the corn crop was in the dent stage and 14 percent was mature. Corn for silage was 30 percent harvested compared with 39 percent harvested at this time last year. In the northern region 17 percent was harvested, in the central region 20 percent was harvested and in the southern region 59 percent was harvested.

All three regions reported five days suitable for fieldwork. Farm activities for the week included making hay; harvesting tobacco, corn silage, potatoes, cabbage, tomatoes, apples, peaches and grapes; plowing; and seeding barley, wheat and rye.

Statewide, 48 percent of the potato crop was harvested, compared with 55 percent harvested at ths time last year. In the northern and central regions 42 percent was harvested at this time last year, while in the southern region of the state 58 percent of the potato crop was harvested.

By the end of the week 70 percent of the tobacco crop was harvested compared with 77 percent harvested at this time last year.

Meanwhile, 32 percent of the barley crop was seeded compared with 43 percent last year. In the northern region 56 percent was planted, in the central region 20 percent was seeded, and in the southern region 24 percent was planted. Some farmers have been delaying barley seeding, hoping that soil moisture will improve.

Statewide, 15 percent of the wheat crop was seeded compared with 29 percent last year. In the northern region 33 percent was planted, in the central three percent was planted, and in the southern region 15 percent of the wheat crop was seeded.

Some farmers have also been delaying wheat seeding, hoping that soil moisture conditions will improve.

Fall plowing was 53 percent complete compared with 69 percent complete last year and also compared with a five-year average of 55 percent. In the northern region 61 percent was complete, in the central region 53 percent was complete, and in the southern region 47 percent was complete.

Farm markets - certified means satisfied

BY TRISH WILLIAMS

LANCASTER — "Certified means satisfied" is both a guiding principle of Pennsylvania Certified Farm Markets and a guarantee of quality and satisfication to customers of these markets.

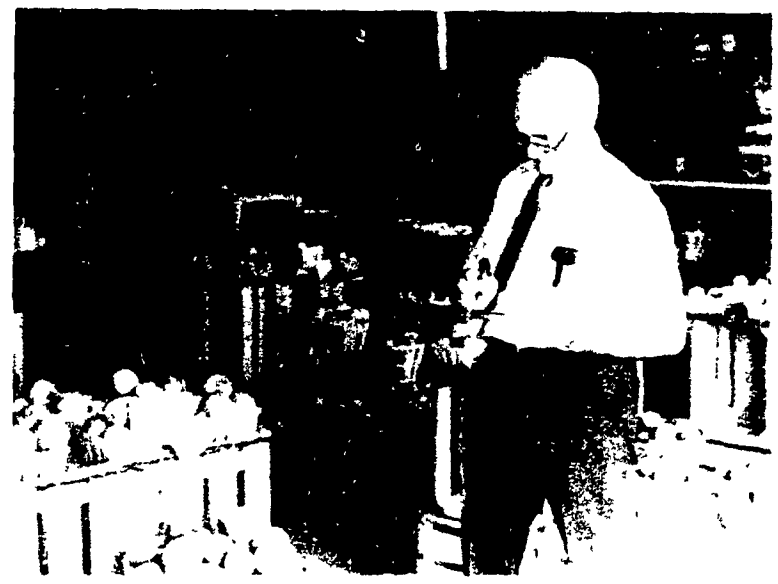
The Farm Market Certification program began about 15 years ago when fruit growers in the state approached the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture requesting that a program be established to help them do a better job of selling their produce directly to the consumer.

PDA, also seeing the need to improve direct marketing of Pennsylvania produce and the image of farm markets, established the Certified Farm Market Program. The objective of the program was two-fold - to give farmers technical assistance to improve their marketing ability, and to inspect the markets on a regular basis to assure the customers of quality produce.

Customers to a certified markets are assured of the following standards: the market is owned and operated by a bona fide producer of farm commodities; commodities offered for sale are fresh and of the highest quality which is guaranteed to please; commodities are attractively displayed, legal containers are used and accurate weights assured; and the market operates in a clean, neat atmosphere with courteous and informed personnel.

Since its inception interest in the program has grown among other segments of agricultural production. Membership now includes vegetable growers, milk juggers and meat producers.

McDowell likes to think of the annual certification inspection as a friendly visit. After inspecting the market premises at Herr Fruit Farm, near Mountville, he reviews his findings with market manager, Judy Rence, and makes suggestions of how the market could be improved.



As Director of Field Operations for the Retail Farm Markets Division, Eugene McDowell, inspects certified markets, checking the quality of produce, service to the customer, and cleanliness of the market, all to assure that certified does mean satisfied.

As a result of the increased membership and requests by membership for additional services and a Pennsylvania food product line to complement their own produce, PDA approached the Pennsylvania Farmers Association (PFA) to take over and expand the program.

When PFA took over the program seven years ago there were 35 members, now there are nearly 150, according to Gene McDowell who has served as director of field operations for the Retail Farm Markets Division of PFA since the transition.

Expansion of the program reflects a general growth and refinement of farm markets over the last decade.

McDowell, a Chester County farmer, explains, "We farmers have been taught production, production, production, to the point where we almost have to give away our products. Well PFA thinks profit is a nice word too. By taking control of the marketing function of his products, eliminating the middleman, he can recapture more of the profits he deserves."

As director of the farm market program, McDowell has organized meetings and training sessions to help the grower-marketers be better retail managers. A series of training sessions conducted last year dealt with clerk selection,

Mast captures steer 'grand'

EPHRATA — Ernie Mast, of R1 Morgantown, who is in his first year of fulltime farming following graduation, is winding up his 4-H career in fine fashion.

Ernie and his Angus-Chianina cross, captured the grand champion of the Ephrata Fair Junior Steer Show on Thursday night.

At the ripe old age of 19, Ernie remarked:

"I really like showing and I wish I was younger that I could keep going."

It was his first Ephrata Fair title but two years ago he took the grand at the New Holland Fair. He'll be back there next week with another steer. Also, there's the county roundup and Farm Show. But Ernie's "Abner" is already a heavyweight at 1250 pounds and it may be tough to hold him to the Farm Show limit at just 100 pounds more.

Ernie is the son of Paul and Rhoda Mast and farming on the family's potato and livestock operation this year included renting of 38 acres of his own. He put in hay and corn and the drought gave him a good introduction to the ups-and-downs of farming very early.

Ernie graduated from the Grassland FFA program at Eastern Lancaster County this year. His steer came from Mar-LeFarms in Maryland.

Judge Steve Upperman, now of Franklin County, explained he looked for a lot of red meat in his winners.

"As you probably noticed," he told the audience, "I look at the animals a lot from behind. The consumer may want the leaner meat but we must try not to sacrifice the quality."

For reserve grand champion, Upperman selected the purebred Angus from Rally Farms in New York exhibited by Jodie Weaver, sixth grade student at New Holland Elementary and daughter of Larry Weaver and Carol Diffenbach.

She also will be showing at New Holland next week, the county roundup and hopefully Farm Show.

Fred Weaver wins Ephrata hog crown

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

EPHRATA — The hog show at the Ephrata Fair this year was the kind that fosters a warm feeling of extra satisfaction.

Owner of the grand champion was a 12-year-old who only recently got into showing hogs after quite a few years of specializing in steers.

The grand champion gilt came out of a neighbor's family farm breeding operation that doesn't specialize in supplying feeders for projects or show.

The neighboring breeder also provided some sound advice for the youthful exhibitor and insisted that he take the blue-backed white hog among the four the youngster bought. That one finished as the grand champion of the 72-hog show at Ephrata on Tuesday night.

Grand champion exhibitor was Fred Weaver, seventh-grader at the Cocalico Middle School, and son of F. Roy and Carol Weaver, R1 Ephrata. His older sister, Emily, won the steer grand championship at last year's fair. The family feeds out about 100 steers a year.

Judge Gary Dean, of Strasburg, stressed profitability in his selections.

"I'm looking for pigs that will have profit for everyone concerned — the breeder, the finisher and the butcher."

Weaver's grand champ was the heavyweight champion and tipped the scales at 230 lbs.

"I didn't like the color," Weaver said.

"I preferred the blacker pigs.

"But Ervin Horst (the neighboring breeder) said I should take this one.

"He said that it would do good.

"I sure like him just as much now," the youngster added.

While showing steers for five years, this is only the third for the 12-year-old in hogs. He had a couple of class firsts last year and hardly any thing at all the first year.

Weaver is a member of the Lincoln 4-H Club, the New Holland club and the Red Rose Baby Beef Club.

Reserve grand championship went to Chris Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Chapman, R5 Manheim.

Her Dutch Valley four-way cross was the reserve heavyweight champion. Last year, older sister Liz, now studying forestry at Mont Alto, won the grand championship at the fair and Chris was also runnerup to Liz a couple years ago at county roundup.

Dairylea to hold annual meeting Oct. 12-13

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The 76th anniversary of Dairylea Cooperative Inc. will be observed when the cooperative holds its annual meeting at Hotel Syracuse, Syracuse, N.Y., on Oct. 12 and 13.

More than 900 delegates, directors, member families, and guests are expected to attend, according to Clyde E. Rutherford, president. Rutherford, a dairy farmer from Otego, N.Y., will preside over the meeting as well as deliver a principal address.

Edward O. Daniel, PhD, will be main speaker at the Co-op's annual banquet Wednesday evening, Oct. 12.

Special events during the two day program will focus on ways cooperative members can make government more responsive to the dairy farmer's needs.

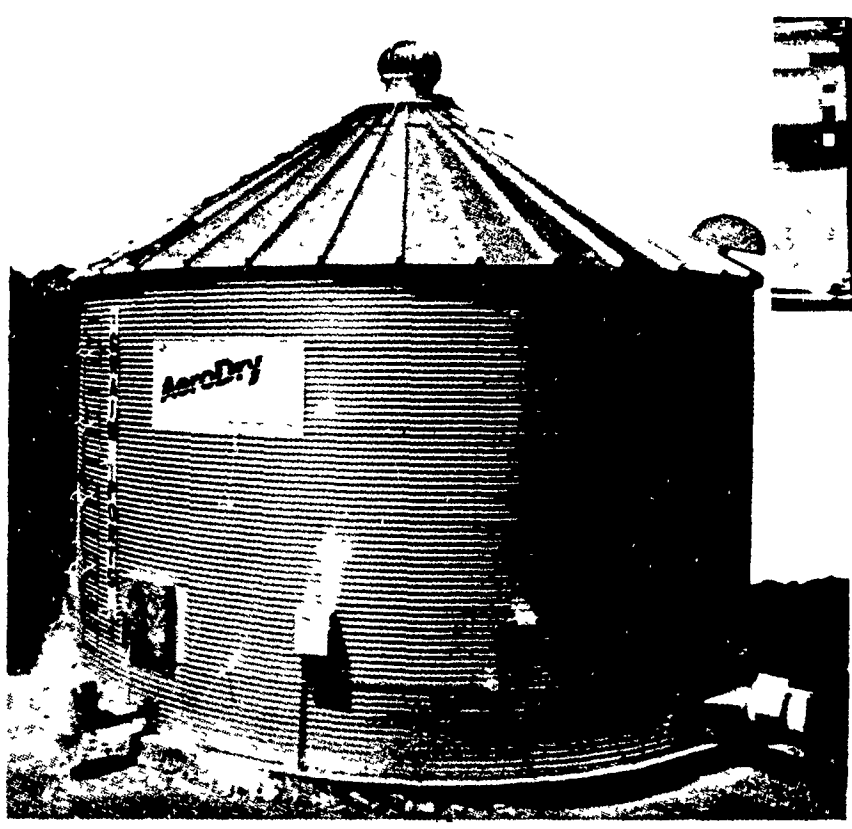
"The past year has been dramatic changes in the dairy farmer's relationship with government," Rutherford commented. "These changes demand greater cooperatives strength among dairy farm families, with greater emphasis on learning how the average dairy farmer can make his point with the federal government."

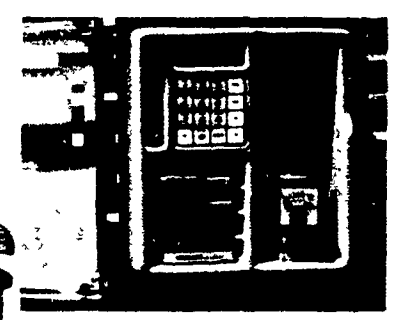
Dairylea Cooperative delegates will also hear reports from Executive Vice President - General Manager Bob Hall and his staff on ways management has made the cooperative's operations more competitive in the current dairy market.

With over 3000 members, Dairylea consists of several hundred "Locals" made up of member producers to form 13 districts in a seven-state region. All 13 Dairylea district directors, as well as sub-district presidents, are scheduled to be on hand for the two day annual meeting.

In its fiscal year ended March 31, 1983, Dairylea Cooperative marketed more than $406 million worth of milk.

THE AERODRY™ COMPUTERIZED GRAIN MANAGEMENT SYSTEM...





Reduced Shrink Loss

No heat means less damage in drying the grain. You get heavier corn with over 50% less shrinkage than heat drying, that means more grain in your bin.

Better Grain Quality

With AeroDry drying, grain isn't cracked or damaged by heat. More natural starches, sugars and other nutrients are retained for better feed quality and higher test weights.

Tax Benefits

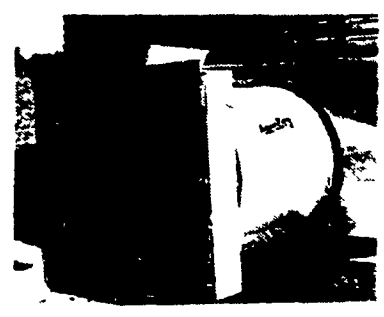
AeroDry Systems qualify for up to a 15% energy credit in the form of an investment tax credit. Added to the 10% grain storage investment credit, that's a total credit of 25%.

The AeroDry System can be installed in any new or existing bin up to 16 feet high. If you're drying grain, or selling to the elevator, you can't afford not to see an AeroDry System. Please call or mail in the coupon and we'll send information and arrange a demonstration. Put the AeroDry difference to work for you.

Grain drying with a difference

Dozens of grain growers throughout the area have discovered the AeroDry difference over conventional heat drying systems. They're making more money from their drying operation for four key reasons:

Tremendous Energy Savings



The AeroDry System uses a unique fan and bin floor set-up to dry grain. It's computer controlled for maximum efficiency. Since no gas is used, no heat of any kind, energy costs are 25% of conventional heat dryers.

training, and supervision. This year he conducted meetings on farm market security, involving State Police officers.

McDowell has also been extensively involved in planning and organizing the Mid Atlantic Direct Marketing Conference held annually in Lancaster. The conference, which has proven to be a tremendous success, originally started as a state wide meeting, and has now grown to include marketers, and market suppliers from Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Experts from business, industry, and academia discuss such topics as extending the marketing season, lay out of pick your own operations, and personnel management. Beyond the organized lectures, the conference acts as a great forum for exchange of ideas between farm marketers.

The Certification program requires that each Pennsylvania Certified Farm Market is inspected annually to assure that the market is following the code of ethics established by the program, and that all the standards are being up held. McDowell likes to think of his certification inspection more as a friendly visit. When necessary he can get tough, but his primary interest is to point out ways that the market and the personnel can improve.

McDowell's role as an educator does not end at the farm market. He works closely with the PDA to educate consumers where their food originates and how to use and prepare the food.

And as if he didn't have enough to do, McDowell promotes and sells Pennsylvania food products. Working at food expositions, special event days and the like, he distributes literature and free food samples of Pennsylvania agricultural products.

His promotion efforts have paid off in establishing markets for Penn Best food products in Missippi, Alabama, New Hampshire, Florida, New York, Maryland and Delaware. Penn Best foods are also available to Certified Farm Markets at group purchase rates.

McDowell's enthusiasm for direct farm marketing is in large supply. "I think direct marketing is the brightest spot in agriculture today. No other area has sparked so much interest, or has as much potential."

Keeping the consumer informed of exactly what they are buying is one of the objectives of the Certified Farm Market program. This display of container sizes shows customers just how much produce they are getting for their money. Notice the Certified Farm Market sign above the window, all Certified Farm Markets display this sign.

Eastern approves new warehouse in Bradford

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The Board of Directors of Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative has given final financing approval for a warehouse construction project in Canton, Pa.

The structure will be used for the cooperative's Dairy Products Division, which has grown over a four-year period to sales revenues of more than $6 million annually. The Dairy Products Division distributes dairy products and other food lines, as well as farm supplies to Eastern members in the Northeast. The program also serves state Granges in Delaware, Vermont, Pennsylvania, and New York. The division currently operates from offices in Canton.

The new building will be constructed on property owned by the cooperative adjacent to the Acme store, and near the High School. The two acre tract was purchased more than a year ago, in anticipation of the new facility. The 90 x 100 foot structure has twenty foot ceilings in the warehouse portion, and covered loading bays. Additionally, Division offices will be built in part of the second level, and a retail dairy store will be built facing the street. Total cost of the project, covering architectural, legal, and construction costs is approximately $650,000.

All construction bidding is being handled through a Syracuse architectural firm.

Eastern's board approved a financing approach utilizing the Bradford County Industrial Authority. Financing through the Authority allows for favorable interest rates through the issuance of tax-exempt bonds. Financing will be for a period of eight years.

Thad Woodward, Manager of the Division, says the dairy store will have a delicatessen, sundaes and dip ice cream, cut and bulk cheese, as well as a full line of other dairy products. The store also will serve hoagies.

Woodward said, "Eastern's dairy distribution business simply outgrew the old feed mill location. The new facility should be adequate to handle sales of $10 million a year." He added the cooperative would continue to use the old warehouse for emergency storage and other supplies.

The program price list, which includes about 200 items, is sent periodically to members and Grange members who order by mail, then meet the delivery truck at a pre-established location. Payment for products is made at the delivery point. The division operates an outlet in Dover, Delaware, and a dairy store in Wellsboro, Pa., in addition to the dairy store presently in Canton.

Hatfield buys Ephrata hog champs

EPHRATA — Hatfield Packing stepped into the winning buyer's circle twice Thursday night, purchasing both the grand and reserve grand champion hogs at the Ephrata Fair.

And two youngsters went home with a sizable stake toward future hog projects.

Fred Weaver, exhibitor of the grand champion, received a total of $1,150 when Hatfield jumped the bidding to $5.00 a pound. Contender on both the champs was Emery's Buying Station.

Reserve grand champion exhibitor Chris Chapman went home with $600 at $2.50 a pound.

The sale average for the 73 head sold, not including champions, was 63 cents a pound, about 15 cents above market.

Other buyers, in addition to Hatfield and Emery's, included Henry Hoover Agway, Strauss Brothers, Triple G Dairy, Seseng's Feed Mill, Farmersville Equipment, Farm Credit, Zimmerman's Animal Health Supplies, Agri Equipment and Agri, Inc.

Jerry Clemens drapes Hatfield banner over Ephrata Fair grand champion of Fred Weaver. Champ brought $5.00 a pound.

Dunlap to direct PAFC

HARRISBURG — A Pennsylvania agricultural organization is stepping up efforts to serve its 46-member cooperatives with the addition of a veteran Agway manager to its staff.

Wallace H. Dunlap, recently retired following a 43-year career in Agway management, has been named administrative director of the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives (PAFC). The new position was the result of recommendations from PAFC's long-range planning taskforce.

Organized in 1933, PAFC was created to help solve problems confronting cooperatives, to support constructive legislation and to work for the betterment of agriculture, Today, PAFC has similar objectives, but has expanded services to incorporate youth and adult education programs.

In his new capacity, the York resident will have responsibilities in many areas, including liaison activities with member cooperatives and prospective PAFC members.

Born in Altoona, he is a son of R. Bruce Dunlap, one of Pennsylvania's first county agents. He received his B.S. degree in Agronomy from The Pennsylvania State University, and began employment with Eastern States Farmers Exchange in 1940, which through later mergers became Agway.

Though interrupted by military service with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers during World War II, he remained employed by Agway until his retirement on August 1.

Most recently, he served as Farm Systems sales and service manager for Agway's southern division.

Announcing the MLX System.
A new generation milker from NuPulse.

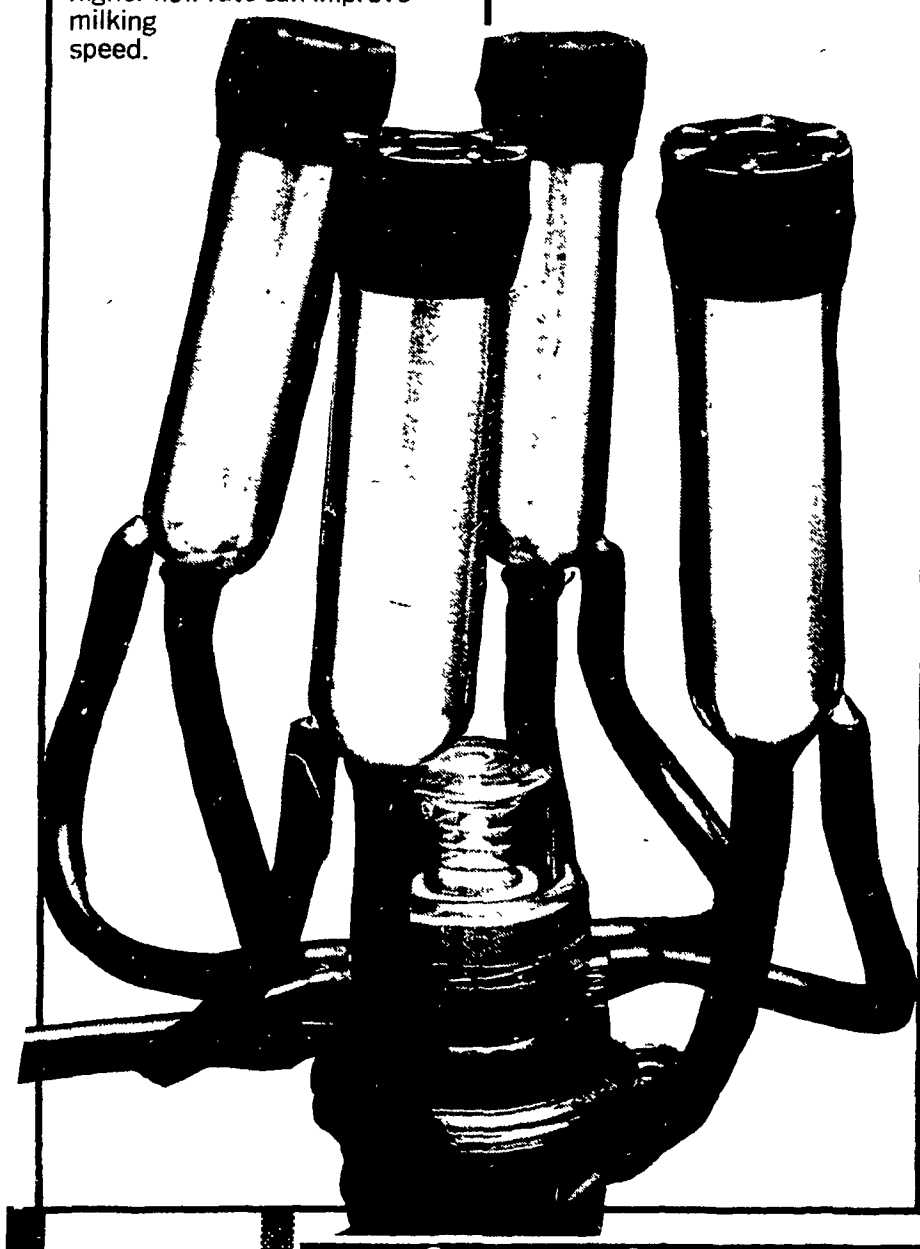
SOME IMPORTANT FACTS:
About high producers
The new MLX Milkers' bigger bowl, combined with the bowl's bigger inlets and outlet, has increased flow capacity substantially. And with high producers, higher flow rate can improve milking speed.

About one-line operation With the new MLX Milker, you have the option of either one-line or two-line operation (single source or separate vacuum lines for pulsator operation and milk removal).



About backflushing
It will! The NuPulse MLX Milker with its special separating diaphragm has the ability to be used with backflush systems.

About breakage The new MLX Milker body is made of tough, break-resistant transparent material and carries a 10-year limited warranty. Ask our competitors about their warranty.

About cleaning The design of the NuPulse MLX Milker allows more thorough cleaning-in-place than many other machines. The NuPulse Jetter system, with its turbulent washing action, allows for inplace washing in the parlor or milkroom. Also the MLX has a diaphragm which completely separates the bowl from the pulsator area.

About maintenance costs The vacuum operated pulsator on every NuPulse Milker has only three moving parts and the dairyman can replace all parts himself.

On-farm experience shows that the durable NuPulse synthetic rubber inflations can last up to 3 times longer than others. All of this can add up to lower maintenance costs.

Orbiting lasers may detect crop deficiencies

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Lasers on satellites won't replace the plow or cow, but they could some day help farmers reap better harvests. That's one possible outcome of a unique project using lasers to detect nutrient-deficient crops.

James E. McMurtrey III of the USDA Field Crops Laboratory in Beltsville, MD., NASA scientists E.W. Chappelle and F.M. Wood of the nearby Goddard Space Flight Center, and private consultant W.W. Newcomb of Landover, MD, announced their findings at the annual American Society of Agronomy meeting in Washington, DC.

Often associated with their Star Wars ability to penetrate or burn almost any material, lasers can also be used "peacefully" to "excite" the surface molecules of substances without destroying them, according to McMurtrey. The substances in this case are the leaves of corn and soybean plants, and the excitation phenomenon is known as fluorescence.

Laboratory tests at the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center and the Goddard Space Flight Center demonstrated the ability of laser light to detect nutrient imbalances adversely affecting photosynthesis, the process green plants use to produce carbohydrates.

"Corn suffering from a lack of nitrogen, iron, potassium, or phosphorus, and soybeans suffering from a lack of phosphorus, boron, sulfur, calcium, magnesium, or potassium were detected by a nitrogen-gas laser emitting a beam of ultraviolet light," the Agricultural Research Service scientists said. "Each of the deficient plants has a unique fluorescent response that could possibly allow us to identify the missing nutrient from miles above the ground."

In fluorescence, plant material (and other substances) exposed to certain wavelengths of light or other forms of energy will sometimes emit its own light. This is the principle behind fluorescent lighting.

In the corn and soybean experiments, fluorescence occurred when laser light struck electrons orbiting the nuclei of atoms in the leaves' chlorophyll pigment. Chlorophyll is the green matter of plants which somehow allows them to produce their own food.

When the laser light—which is energy—strikes the chlorophyll pigment's electrons, some of the energy is absorbed. The electrons become "excited," and "jump" to a higher orbit around the nuclei. Often, these new orbits are unstable: the electrons quickly fall back to their original state, and the extra energy is given back as light of a specific, usually new wavelength.

In greenhouse tests, McMurtrey, Chappelle, Newcomb, and Wood used ultraviolet laser light with a wavelength of 337 nanometers (a nanometer, "nm," is one-billionth of a meter, or about 4 hundred-millionths of an inch). Testing seven-week-old normal corn and soybean plants with the laser, the scientists found that the greatest amount of light given off by the crop plants had wavelengths of 440, 690, and 740 nm.

The scientists then trained the laser onto the leves of nutrient-deficient greenhouse plants grown in sand. Each of the seven groups of plants was deficient in a particular nutrient. Compared with the normal, "control" groups of soybeans and corn, significant decreases in fluorescence were evident at 440 nm for corn lacking nitrogen, iron, and potassium and for soybeans lacking sufficient phosphorus. At 690 nm and 740 nm, decreases in fluorescence were observed for corn deficient in phosphorus, nitrogen, and iron, and for soybeans deficient in boron, phosphorus, and sulfur. Potassium deficiency caused increases in fluorescence for corn at both 690 nm and 740 nm and for soybeans at 440 nm. Soybeans also had significantly increased fluorescence at 690 nm and 740 nm for calcium, potassium, and magnesium deficiencies.

Though the mechanisms governing these fluctuations in laser-induced fluorescence are not well understood, McMurtrey and Chappelle foresee practical use of what is already known. Crops growing in soils suspected of being deficient in certain nutrients could be surveyed with lasers from high-altitude aircraft or satellites. Work undertaken by the USDA, NASA, and other organizations has paved the way for the remote sensing that is currently being used to monitor our agricultural resources. Laser systems of sensing could greatly enhance other methods currently in use for worldwide agricultural remote sensing.

In the future, this multidisciplinary team will take their lab research to the field and attempt to apply laser-induced fluorescence at various wavelengths to other crops and stresses (such as disease, insect damage, or drought). Aside from the practical benefits gained by spotting crop problems, the scientists hope their research will bring them closer to unraveling the biochemical riddle of photosynthesis.

Sisters Prepare for All-American

MOHRSVILLE — As All-American week in Pennsylvania approaches, the anticipation builds for two sisters and their parents in the rural countryside of Berks County.

This will be the first year that Constance and Cathleen Ohlinger paln to stay after the Junior Show on the 26th for the Eastern National show on the 29th in Harrisburg with two very successful heifers. In addition to Reu-Hel Farms Sexation Heather, a growthy senior yearling, daughter of Ocean-View Sexation, owned by Cathy, the Ohlinger family also plans to show off in Harrisburg this week Reu-Hel Farms Valient Cristy, a fancy junior yearling bred and owned by Connie.

Elwood and Ruth Ohlinger, R1, Mohrsville, and their two daughters know that these two heifers are "among the best" at Reu-Hel Farm, and they are all pleased with the show ring success that they have acheived throughout the summer. Of Connie's 23 head of registered Holsteins and Cathy's 20 black and whites, these two heifers have been led into the spotlight for Junior and Reserve Junior Championships by the girls many times this summer, and they are looking forward to the All-American competition.

Speaking about her daughters' animals, Ruth Ohlinger states, "Their's tend to be better. When you give your kid a project animal, you tend to give them the best," she continues.

Cathy, left, and Connie stand with their two heifers, Heather and Cristy. The foursome has enjoyed many championships this summer.

Homestead Notes

Connie has been extremely successful in the showring throughout her 4-H career and has garnered awards not only in local shows, but also from the Holstein Association, and its championship shows. The chairs on the side are the result of "Cristy" and Connie winning as Junior Yearling Heifer and in Best 3.

Most of Cathy's animals are descendents of "Sandy," and "Excellent," Gold Medal cow in the Reu-Hel Farms herd with a high record of 17-10 305 days, 29,414 milk, and 966 fat. The "Sandy" family has been very prolific for Cathy and has given her many heifers. Cathy's first project animal, "Sondra," a VG-89, Elevation daughter, was superovulated. From the "flush," Cathy got four heifers, sired by Joludi Elmer Chief. After giving "Mom" and "Dad" a heifer to cover the costs, Cathy also traded a heifer for a horse from her sister, Connie, and kept the remaining two.

Always able to show in the group classes because of her "heifer luck," Cathy has a pair of cows for the Produce of Dam class that in Connie's words are "hard to beat." They include an "Excellent" and a "Very Good - 86."

Although Cathy has had her share of prize winning bovines, she is the "horse lover" in the family. She owns two Quarter horses and loves to show them in the racing classes at local horse shows. "Racing is fun," she states and has enjoyed ribbon-winning successes with her horses in the barrel races and in pole bending.

Connie, on the other hand, is committed to the dairy industry thru and thru. She had previously traded her saddle to her sister for a heifer who went on to be the Junior Champion of the Eastern Show as a Senior yearling the year she was traded. Reu-Hel Farms Milestone Susie, a VG-88 daughter of Poverty Hollow Milestone, continues to be successful for Connie and has also given her second owner a heifer calf, Elevation daughter. "Suzette," the Elevation daughter, just recently received the first place Intermediate Calf in the Junior Division at the Pennsylvania Championship Show and placed 6th in the open division.

Connie's main chore is the milking duties at Reu-Hel farms, and she gets the milkers ready for the 53 animals in their milking string.

As the 1983 Dairy Princess for Berks County, Connie is very busy juggling her time since graduation from Schuylkill Valley High School in the spring. She can be found milking the 53 registered Holsteins in the family milking string, promoting milk throughout the county at schools, banquets, and meetings, or showing her own string of black and whites.

She is most proud of "Cristy," the S-W-D Valient daughter our of an Elevation. This junior yearling has been undefeated this year. After placing first at the Pennsylvania Spring Show, Junior Champion in the Junior Division, Reserve Junior Champion in the Open classes, and first place in Bred by Exhibitor, "Cristy" and Connie continued their winning ways at the Eastern Pennsylvania Championship Show with the Junior Championship, at the Kutztown Fair with the Junior Championship, and also at the Southeast 4-H District Show and the Allentown Fair.

They topped off the summer with 1st place in the junior division and in the open classes at the Pennsylvania Championship Show in Huntington and also received 1st place in Bred by Exhibitor there.

"We never had anything like that before," Mrs. Ohlinger states. "It's scary, Everybody's been watching her."

The Ohlingers look hopefully towards an All-Pennsylvania nomination for "Cristy."

With Holsteins this good, there is always the question of merchandising. To this, Connie says, "If she's going to be good, she's going to be mine."

The Reu-Hel dairy family is no stranger to merchandising. After taking over the 225-acre farm in 1975 from Ruth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Fields, Ruth and Elwood built up the herd to approximately 125 milking animals and in 1980 they had a major reduction sale and sold approximately 235 head of top quality Holsteins, keeping only the older animals and the 4-H animals of the girls.

"Milking one barnful is enough," Connie and her mother agree.

They milk in a stanchion barn equipped with pipeline, and previously had filled it twice when milking to accomodate the 100 plus animals in the 54 stanchion barn.

Among the older cows there is Reu-Hel Farms Sunshine Amy, currently 17 years of age and retired to live out her days in the Reu-Hel pastures. "Amy" is a 92-4E Harbourcrest Sunshine daughter with a lifetime of over 250,000 pounds of milk and a high record of 10-06, 305 days, 26,375 milk, 745 fat. She is the dam of Reu-Hel Farms Big Mac, who sold to Japan in 1979 after being named Reserve All-American 2 Year old bull in 1978. "Amy" also has a "Conductor" son on the farm which the Ohlingers are working to prove. "Amy" also happens to be the granddam of "Cristy".

"There are two excellent cow families behind my herd," Connie states.

Many of her heifers trace back to the "Amy" cow or to an "Excellent" Astronaut cow. Her mother states that they often had to "subsidize" Connie since she has had the bull calves and Cathy gets the heifer calves.

Wat's in the future for this dairy family and their bovines? One of the past Berks County Outstanding Farm Families, and with several bulls in A.I. service, and more animals like "Heather" and "Cristy" in their barns, a B.A.A. of 106.6 with 5 "Excellents" and 31 "Very Goods" and a rolling herd average of 18,800, 670 for fat in addition to daughters like Connie and Cathy to show them, we'll hear from them again: When Mrs. Ohlinger states proudly, "It just means more if you bred the animal and go out and win," she can be twice as proud since it's a Reu-Hel bovine and an Ohlinger daughter in the ring.

Need a Quick, Tasty Meal? Use a Microwave

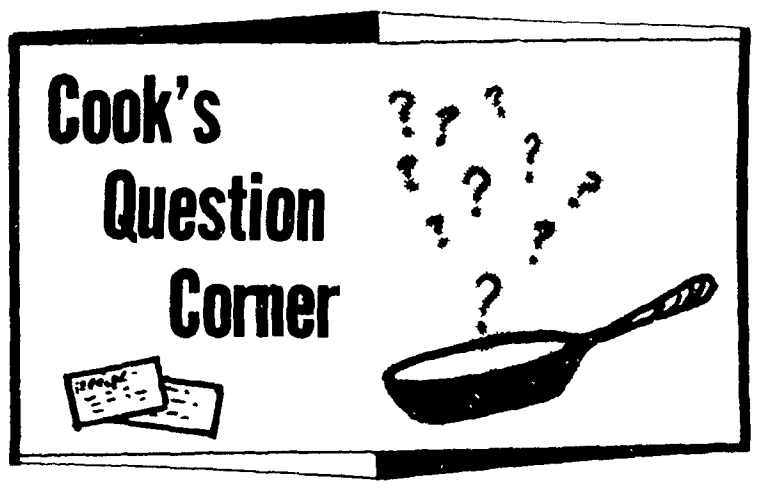
Microwave ovens, once a rare appliance, are becoming a common sight in kitchens, especially those belonging to families who cram many activities into every busy day.

As microwave ovens become more popular, more interesting recipes are being designed for their use. The idea that a meal made in a microwave is not as appealing as one prepared by a longer method is being disproved.

Now, a meal that takes 20 minutes to prepare can taste like you spent hours in the kitchen.

Try one of these recipes and see for yourself how convenient and tasty microwave meals can be.

Does this dish, featuring chicken, mushrooms and peas, look too good to have been made in the microwave? Take a closer look because the recipe and microwave cooking instructions are found on this page under Microwave Chinese Chicken with Rice.



ANSWER - In response to J. Kozdela's request for a funnel cake recipe, we got three replies. Thanks go to Beryl Hosfelt, Shippensburg, for the following recipe.

2 cups milk
2 beaten eggs
½ teaspoon salt
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder

Mix milk and eggs together. Add dry ingredients and mix well. If too thick, add a little more milk. If too thin, add a little more flour. Pour batter through funnel into hot fat. Drain and sprinkle with powdered sugar while still hot.

ANSWER - Thanks also to Donna Livelsberger, Hanover, for her funnel cake recipe.

3 eggs
2 cups milk
4 cups flour
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder

Beat eggs and add milk and sugar. Sift flour, salt and baking powder together. Add dry ingredients to egg and milk mixture. Beat batter until smooth and thin enough to run through a small funnel. Drop from funnel into 1½ inches of hot oil (370 degrees) holding finger over bottom of funnel to control amount of batter released. Make into a design. Fry until golden brown, drain and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

ANSWER - Betty Evans, Pequea, also had a funnel cake recipe and a new question for us. First, her recipe.

1 egg
1 cup milk
1⅓ cup flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ teaspoon baking powder

Mix all ingredients together. With a funnel, swirl some mix into a frying pan with about 1-2 inches of hot oil. Brown one side and turn over for a minute.

QUESTION - Does anyone have a recipe for vanilla woopie pies and spice-flavored woopie pies?

When you are a key figure in two family businesses, there are days when time in the kitchen is limited to that which can be squeezed in between working hours. When that happens, a microwave comes in handy, according to Rubye Kosko, who works with her husband in the construction business and in their vineyards.

"I couldn't get along without it," Rubye explained. "It is a tremendous help."

Rubye has discovered a microwave trick for frying chicken. She cooks the chicken in the microwave for a few minutes prior to frying it. This way, the inside of the chicken is already cooked before it goes in the frying pan.

Rubye Kosko

"I also use it a lot in the morning for coffee," Rubye said.

She also explained that she cooks most of her vegetables in the microwave. They are done in about a minute and a half, much quicker than when put on a burner. There is also less heat involved.

Read about Rubye's vinyard on page B22 and try her grape recipes also on that page.

the cooking time. Let stand five to 10 minutes. Note: Meatloaves remain more moist when microwaved than they do when baked conventionally, so the above recipe contains no milk or water. If you want to adapt a favorite meatloaf for microwaving, reduce the liquid by about half.

INCREDIBLE PIE

1/2 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1/4 cup butter, melted
4 eggs, well-beaten
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 package (7 oz.) coconut

Combine flour and sugar in mixing bowl. Add butter, eggs, milk and vanilla; mix well. Stir in coconut; pour mixture into buttered 10-inch pie plate. Microwave uncovered on full power, turning dish a half turn every three minutes, until filling is firm, about 10 minutes. Cool several hours or overnight. Just before serving, place pie under broiler until top is golden brown, if desired.

TUNA CASSEROLE

3 ounces uncooked elbow macaroni
3 tablespoons butter
3/4 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped green pepper
3 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons soy sauce
1/2 teaspoon dill weed
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 cup milk
1 cup cream-style cottage cheese
1 can (13 oz.) tuna, drained and flaked
1 can (4 oz.) mushrooms, drained
2 tablespoons butter
1/3 cup crushed croutons

Cook macaroni according to package directions; drain and reserve. Microwave three tablespoons butter in a two-quart casserole uncovered on full power until melted, about 30 seconds. Stir in celery, onion and green pepper. Microwave covered with plastic wrap on full power until tender, about three minutes. Blend in flour, soy sauce, dill, salt and pepper. Stir in milk and cheese. Microwave uncovered on full power, stirring after each minute, until mixture is thickened and bubbly, about five minutes. Stir in reserved macaroni, tuna and mushrooms. Microwave uncovered on full power, stirring every three minutes, until hot, about six minutes. Microwave two tablespoons butter in a one-cup measure uncovered on full power until melted, about 20 seconds. Stir in crushed croutons. Sprinkle over casserole. Let casserole stand uncovered five minutes before serving.

QUICHE

10 slices bacon (about 1/2 pound)
1 9-inch baked pastry shell
3 eggs, beaten
1 cup light cream or half and half
1/3 cup sliced green onions with tops
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese
dash pepper

Arrange bacon on paper towel on a plate. Cover with more paper toweling to prevent spattering. Microwave on full power until bacon is crisp, about six minutes. Reserve one slice bacon for garnish. Crumble remaining bacon into bottom of pastry shell. Combine eggs, cream, green onions, cheese and pepper. Pour into pastry shell over bacon. Microwave uncovered on half power, turning a quarter turn every four minutes until knife inserted in center comes out clean, about 16 minutes. Let stand uncovered five minutes before serving. Garnish with reserved bacon slice.

CHILI

1 pound lean ground beef
1 medium onion, sliced
1 medium green pepper, chopped
1 clove garlic
1 can (16 oz.) stewed tomatoes
1 can (15 1/2 oz.) kidney beans, drained
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1 1/2 to 2 teaspoon chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon oregano

Crumble ground beef into a two-quart casserole. Microwave at high power 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 minutes until meat is almost cooked. Pour off fat. Break up meat into smaller pieces. Stir in raw vegetables. Microwave four to five minutes until vegetables are tender. Stir in remaining ingredients. Cover. Microwave five minutes at high power. Remove cover and stir. Microwave uncovered at medium power for 20 to 25 minutes, stirring at least once.

CHINESE CHICKEN WITH RICE

1 whole broiler-fryer chicken
1/4 cup soy sauce, divided
1 tablespoon margarine, melted
2 cups water
2 tablespoons diced onion
2 chicken bouillon cubes
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup long grain rice
1/8 teaspoon pepper
3 ribs celery, diagonally sliced
1/2 medium onion, thinly sliced
8 ounces fresh mushrooms, thinly sliced
8 ounces snow pea pods, fresh or frozen

In small saucepan over low heat, melt margarine. Remove from heat and add one tablespoon of soy sauce; brush chicken with sauce; reserve remaining portion. In large, shallow microwave dish, place chicken on trivet, breast side down. Cover loosely with wax paper; microwave on medium setting for 15 minutes. Remove chicken from microwave and turn chicken breast side up. Brush generously with soy-margarine sauce. Cover with wax paper and continue to microwave on medium setting for 15 minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease and leg moves freely when lifted or twisted. While chicken is in microwave, in small saucepan mix together water, diced onion, bouillon cubes and salt. Bring to a boil; add rice, cover, reduce heat to low and cook for 20 minutes or until rice is done.

Remove chicken from microwave and allow to stand for 10 minutes. Reserve pan drippings. Remove chicken from bones and cut into bite-size pieces. Discard bones and skin. Mix remaining soy sauce with pepper and pour over chicken; set aside.

In large bowl, mix together sliced onion, celery and pan drippings. Cover and microwave on high setting for two minutes, stirring after one minute. Add mushrooms and pea pods. Microwave on high setting for two minutes, stirring after one minute. Add chicken and rice; toss to mix thoroughly.

Joyce Bupp

Guess there'll be no column this week.

My Typewriter's gone kaput.

There it sits in dusty, blue innocence, the steady electric humming camaflouging its dying gasps.

Never mind that a repairman came to fix this usually dependable machine just four days ago.

Turned it upside down. Opened up the belly. Poked. Prodded. Loosened. Tightened. Surgically removed its ailing pacemaker - i.e. power roller - and installed a new, bionic replacement.

Gently rolled the patient right side up. Dusted it off. Cleaned the pretty blue te tured exterior.

Very thorough.

Typed away on the keys. Pronounced the patient fit. No more warming it up for an hour and coaxing it along.

Got the bill - $45 per hour Minimum. Plus parts Plus mileage.

Suggested I think about replacing the machine. Seems that next year parts for my model will be discontinued.

Also - warned that power rollers don't last nearby as long as they once did. Improved materials apparently. Last night, the bugger broke again.

(Typewriters can be a lot like combines.)

Typed real fine for a couple of hours.

Then — kafloole!

Ribbon won't feed Just sits there as the keys pound holes in it

Shift key to make capital letters won't work either.

/which means i type like this /

Rolled patient on back Poked, Prodded. Prayed

Administered a whack with back of hand.

Still no ribbon - no capitals

Sore hand.

Dialed repairman He'll be here later Price has probably gone up to $50 per hour in last two days

I dunno.

Maybe the old way was better

I can buy a lot of these ballpoints for $45

Blossoming of Bamboo Threatens Pandas

WASHINGTON — The village grandfathers recall that it last happened during the time of the Long March in the 1930s — bamboo bursting into flower high up in the mountains in the heart of China's panda range. but no one knows for sure.

It is certain that when some mysterious internal clock tells bamboo to blossom, about every 30, 60 or 120 years, it signals danger for the already endangered giant panda.

When bamboo flowers, it dies — within a few years. And it can take five to 10 years for new seedlings to mature. In the meantime, there may be no food for pandas, which live almost exclusively on a few kinds of bamboo.

Arrow In Bloom

Arrow bamboo is now flowering more than 8,000 feet up in the Qionglai Mountains of Sichuan Province. It is the principal diet of the 125 to 150 pandas inhabiting China's largest panda reserve, Wolong. The same species, Arundinaria fangiana, also is blooming in nearby Baoxing County, where at least 200 more pandas live. Although there are only about 1,000 pandas left in the wild in China.

"There's the potential of an emergency," according to Dr. George B. Schaller, co-leader of the panda field research project jointly funded by the World Wildlife Fund and the Chinese government. "The situation must be monitored carefully, and we must be prepared to help if pandas can't find alternative sources of bamboo."

This giant panda in China's Wolong Natural Reserve crunches a bamboo shoot in its powerful jaws. It may consume more than 30 pounds of bamboo a day. A rare die-off of arrow bamboo in the Wolong area threatens the pandas.

Threatens Pandas

death in the mid-1970s when another species of bamboo blossomed in another region of China's panda range. That calamity was a major impetus in launching the panda research project, which began in 1980. As China becomes more and more developed, pandas may have an even harder time finding food.

"The pandas in Wolong spend most of their time high up in the mountains where the arrow bamboo grows," says Dr. Julian J.N. Campbell, who was plant ecologist for the World Wildlife project. "Now they will be forced down to try to eat other kinds of growing in the lower regions, but there are people down there too, living right in the reserve. The pandas could be squeezed out."

And pandas need a lot of bamboo. Each panda consumes from 22 to 33 pounds of bamboo a day. Their digestive tracts are able to extract little nutritive value from each plant, which has only about as much nutrition as an onion.

Unexpected Flowering

The emergence of the tassle-like brownish blossoms in Wolong was not predicted. "A patch here, a patch there had blossomed in the last few years," says Schaller. "At the end of 1982, only about five percent was in the process of blooming. Now over 90 percent of it is in blossom. We knew it was building up to it, but we didn't know it would happen this year."

Why bamboo flowers is still a mystery to scientists. "There's some internal mechanism, with a predetermined cycle. Regardless of the environment, when it's time to flower, it flowers, and we have absolutely no idea what triggers this," says Dr. Thomas R. Soderstrom, curator at the Smithsonian Institution's department of botany.

Despite the long intervals between flowering, bamboo's preset calendar remarkably causes all plants of the same species — wherever they are in the world — to burst into flower at roughly the same time.

In China, government officials are now surveying the bamboo outside Wolong to determine the extent of flowering elsewhere and the availability of alternative food sources.

Once this survey is complete, says Schaller, "we will know exactly how seriously the pandas will be affected in the next few years." Food may have to be delivered to pandas in certain areas, or the pandas themselves may have to be trapped and moved to places where bamboo is plentiful.

This year's flowering of arrow bamboo will barely be noticed by the pandas at the national Zoo in Washington, D.C. That species is not part of their diet. They eat several varieties of bamboo that are home-grown in gardens in the Washington area.

Twist a belt in minutes

It's easy to twist threads into a colorful, fashionable belt. All you need are threads scissors and a doorknob.

You don't even need a buckle. By looping the ends into a figure eight knot, the knots interlock into a professional-looking double clasp.

In order to make the rope you twist threads into a tight rope, fold the rope in half, and then twist both sides together. When the threads are gently elasticized, twisting becomes even easier.

You can find the proper threads in craft, yarn or specialty shops. They're often available in bright colors and metallics.

When you get the knack of twisting, you can use the technique to make headbands, necklaces, bracelets and other projects. By varying the number of stands, the types of fiber, and the colors, almost anything is possible.

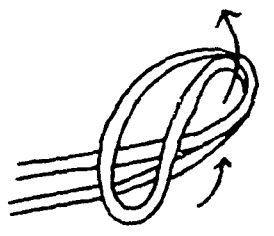
Here are directions for a twisted belt:

MATERIALS: Threads, preferably elasticized. The amount needed depends upon the width of thread and belt desired. You'd need about 175 yards of "Yarn Loft" brand elasticized metallic threads, for example, to make an average-width belt.

CUTTING: 1. Cut threads into 13-foot lengths. 2. Line up the threads. 3. Knot one end. 4. Run fingers through the threads to straighten them out, and knot the other end.

THE FIRST TWIST: 1. Either give one end to a friend, or slip the end over a doorknob. 2 Holding the other end, stand back as far as necessary to stretch the threads gently. 3. Twist your end clockwise until the threads are twisted lightly together. If you're working with a friend, have him twist his end clockwise too.

THE SECOND TWIST: 1. Without releasing the tension, find the center of your twisted rope.



A

(Either let your partner hold the two ends, or if you're working alone, put a weight on each end while you locate the center.) 2. Starting at the center point, let both halves of the rope twist together If your rope is twisted tightly enough, both halves should twist together almost by themselves. 3. Tape ends together to keep rope from untwisting.

CLASP: 1 Fold back approximately six inches on one end 2 Tie a "figure-8" knot as illustrated. a Fold the looped end back over the rope to create a new loop. Bring the original loop back through the new loop Pull loop tight.

CLOSING: 1 Make the same knot on the other end of your rope 2. Adjust knots to fit your waist 3 Close belt by passing one loop through the other loop, and then slipping loops over knots 4 Adjust knots as needed to make loops fit snugly

FINISHING: 1 Cut a one-foot thread for wrapping 2. Hide all loose ends as illustrated b Loop one end of the thread Wrap the other end of the thread several times around the loop, the loose ends, and the belt. Then, slip the thread through the loop. Pull the other end of the thread This will pull the top loop under the wrapping thread

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

My garden keeps me very busy. But am I satisfied - no! So, yesterday I bought one-half bushel of apples, one-half bushel of plums and one-half bushel of pears all at one time. I'm hoping to can them over the next few days.

This morning I walked past my prolific tomato patch, where I've picked over 20 baskets of fruit, and was surprised to see an opossum in our box trap. This is the third one and I didn't even have any dog food in the trap to entice it.

When I reached the cucumber bed, I told myself that next year they must be planted near a fence This year the plants crawled south over three rows of sweet corn. When they reached the top of the corn stalk, the stalk toppled over and they kept going up the next row This poses a real problem in picking them as I like to use them when they're only two or three inches long. You should see some of the big ones that I've missed. I'll let one on the vine for seed the same as I did last year after paying $1.75 for thirty little seeds.

This year my cantaloupes did better than the watermelons. They were very slow starting because of the dry weather But, they got their share of the soaker hose that I laid all over my garden. And so several of the cantaloupes weighed almost eight pounds and we had enough to eat them three times a day.

I've frozen several quarts of green soybeans, and now the rest will be picked and used as dry beans because the plants are turning yellow There's never a dull moment in a gardener's life.

Ribs Claim Ribbon in Cook-Off

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — Hanging on the fence at the hog exhibit arena was the place to be last Saturday morning at the York Fair.

It was the place to be because the trio of contestants in the Pork Cookout contest were passing out samples of their finished entries in the on-the-spot cooking competition.

When the judges had finished taste-testing and scoring for points in use of state commodity foods and presentation of the meal, Mike Glatfelter, Locust Street, York, had claimed the blue ribbon.

Glatfelter wooed the judges with his Marinated Country Style Ribs, a recipe he invented while browsing throught he supermarket looking for inspiration.

Originally intending to use mushroom soup as a base for the marinade-sauce, Glatfelter instead came up with more a sweet-n-sour gravy mix, combining marinade mix, canned golden pork gravy, brown sugar, vinegar and King syrup.

Rounding out his meal presentation were servings of green beans, sweet rice, applesauce with cinnamon and pumpernickle bread. A red-and-white checkered tablecloth and centerpiece of red and white carnations added a gracious touch.

A "hobby cook" for about five years, Glatfelter will represent York County's Pork Producers in the upcoming state cookout contest.

Second place honors went to Linda Lee Robinson, Stewartstown R3.

Her entree, labeled Pork Barbecue, is one often cooked by her husband. But when she couldn't convince him to enter the cookout contest, Mrs. Robinson entered herself as a contestant.

Her barbeque topping also went over country style ribs, and included tomato juice, catsup, pineapple juice, salt, Worcestershire sauce, ginger and minced onion.

Accompaniments in her meal presentation included a pineapple salad and apple wine.

Larry Small claimed the third place spot with an original grill-steamed meat-vegetable combination.

A staff member and cook at the York Rescue Mission for four years, Small developed his vegetable medley to utilize the abundance of vegetables contributed by donors to the Mission's feeding programs. In fact, last year Small estimates he prepared approximately 53,000 meals.

Larry's Sweet Italian Sausage and Cauliflower Casserole is a colorful combination of chunks of sausage, pieces of cauliflower, fresh tomato chunks, sweet peppers, onions, mushrooms and ripe olives, steamed in foil over the grill.

Seasoning is all herbs and no salt, using a ration of about one-half tablespoon each of oregano, basil and garlic to each six servings.

Servings of fruit, cheese, and breadsticks rounded out the casserole entree.

Judges for the annual cookout contest, sponsored by the York County Pork Producers, were Sheila Arnold, former York Extension home economist, Roxanne Price, home economist and York's Extension 4-H director, and livestock producer Philip Smyser, also of York.

Winning Pork Cookoff chef Mike Gladfelter gives his winning creation a final turn over the glowing coals before taste testing time.

Load it full. Press the new hydrostatic control lever. And you're on your way to feed silage, haylage or any other feed to your dairy herd—quickly, cleanly and conveniently.

With new hydrostatic drive, this new Series IV cart gives you fully variable speed control. Fingertip operation provides any travelling speed you select.

The Weaverline Series IV cart puts you in complete command of your feeding operation. As your Series IV cart moves into position in front of each stall, set the auger and apron-system indicator to discharge the rate of feed you desire. Then shut it off and move on to the next cow. Or if you want, lay a continuous flow of feed. Fast-flow front-end discharge with flexible deflector makes it easy to put your feed right where you want it.

No matter which of the three models you choose, you can depend on Weaverline advance engineering design. Upkeep, time and labor saved will more than pay for the cost of a Weaverline Series IV transport cart.

DEALER INQUIRIES INVITED

Cindy Frey proudly displays her Bob Evans award, Hez Sandy's Cat. Sandy Cat is a 4-month old stud colt bred by the Bob Evans farm. Cindy was the state winner in the Bob Evans program and is the first Cumberland County 4-H'er to ever receive the outstanding award of a colt.

Horse Makes Dream Come True for 4-H'er

BY BETH HEMMINGER
Staff Correspondent

Carlisle — Forget about trophies, Cindy Frey won a prize you just can't beat.

This Cumberland County girl, chosen from among thousands of state 4-H'ers has won a Quarter horse from the well-known down-on-the-farm sausage maker, Bob Evans.

The entire Frey family, including all four of her grandparents, went along on the exciting weekend trip to Rio Grande, Ohio, from September 9 thru 11, to the big Bob Evans farm. Six other 4-H'ers and their families from the states of Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois, Georgia, Delaware and Maryland were also heading for Rio Grande that same weekend to claim their horses.

But, according to Cindy, there was more to this weekend than just receiving a horse.

"It was just unbelievable," she said.

Cindy said that Bob Evans and his staff devoted one hundred percent of their time and energy to the weekend activities.

"Everything was for us kids," Cindy said. The weekend is a tribute to the 4-H winners and is appropriately named, the 4-H Fall Round-up.

When Cindy and the rest of the 4-H'ers arrived at the Bob Evans farm, acquaintances were made and then the seven 4-H'ers were saddled up and sent out on to the 1100-acre farm along with chaperones and wranglers to roundup the horses. Cindy remarked, "We were real wranglers, or at least we thought so!"

The 4-H'ers and their entourage slept in lean-tos, woke at the break of dawn, ate by the camp fire and rounded-up the mares and their weanlings that would soon be given to the seven winners.

"It was great," said Cindy, "everyone became an instant friend of yours."

Once the horses were rounded-up in the main corral, the presentations to the 4-H'ers would soon take place. The winners picked numbers out of a hat. Cindy was the first to draw a number and pulled out the lucky six. Cindy's lucky six made her the proud owner of Hez Sandy's Cat. Sandy Cat as Cindy calls him is a 4-month old stud colt with long, long legs and a beautiful little face.

After Bob Evans presented each weanling to the 4-H'er, he also presented each of them with an engraved plaque, a halter and a lead rope. The seven winners also received a t-shirt made especially for them. And Cindy added, "They can't be bought anywhere else."

Each of the seven weanlings were calm and tame for their new owners. Cindy said that the staff and worked with the young horses months before the 4-H Fall Round-up to prepare them for their journey to a new home and also so they could be friends with their new owners immediately.

To receive such an outstanding award and a fun-filled expense paid weekend, Cindy had to prove her worth.

Cindy completed the State 4-H Blue Form which was entered in an overall competition then she was selected as an entry in the Bob Evans program. She then had to complete another form similiar to the blue form and submit it for regional competition in the Bob Evans program.

From the two forms she was judged on personal accomplishments, achievements in 4-H, church and community involvement, facilities to care for the horse, plan to raise and show the horse and parental permission.

After the judging of the forms, Cindy received an appointment for an interview in the program, and now the rest is history.

Cindy is a member of the Cumberland County 4-H Light Horse and Pony Club and presently shows three horses - two in production and one as her main project. This is her fifth year in the club. She also carries other 4-H projects including sewing, stamp collecting and rabbit production.

For Cindy the weekend was days filled with excitement, happiness and satisfaction, just as the founder of the program had hoped it would be for all the 4-H'ers.

Cindy provided a little history about the Bob Evans program and said that since 1977 Bob Evans has given 63 Quarter horses away to 4-H'ers throughout the states. He started giving the weanlings to the 4-H'ers because it made a dream come true for the youngsters — to have a horse of their own. Cindy read from a publication that stated, as a boy, Mr. Evans couldn't afford to buy a horse or even a pony. And now he wants to make the hope, wishes and dreams come true for youngsters who really want a horse. During the weekend round-up, Bob Evans was right there. "He really made everyone feel at home, he treated you like a long-time friend," Cindy said. "Mr. Evans philosophy is, 'if you give a kid a fishing pole or horse, you're not going to have a troublemaker!"

"I like that," Cindy said.

For Cindy Frey, Bob Evans made a dream come true.

"I felt like Cinderella, and sometimes I still can't believe it's true and that it happened to me," Cindy said.

Flip-up feedroll makes shearbar adjustment easy.

There's a big choice of crop heads, including the exclusive interchangeable 3 row crop head/windrow pickup, 2 row low profile crop head, conventional windrow pickup, sickle bar and ear corn snapping heads. Underknife baffles increase capacity.

Like all Sperry New Holland machines, the 892 is backed by a service and parts system that's second to none.

Pa. Has a New State Dairy Princess!

BY KIMBERLY HERR

HARRISBURG — Excitement, like a crackling current of electricity, ran through the Marriott's ballroom in Harrisburg Tuesday night as the audience anxiously waited to hear the name of the new Pa. State Dairy Princess.

The judges had narrowed it down from 39 to seven, had chosen the finalists, and there was only one more decision to be made.

Grover Gouker Jr., the evening's emcee, called Tamara Lynn Cree's name, and the audience rose to their feet with applause.

Tamara, the 18-year-old daughter of Bill and Laura Cree, Carmichaels, was the representative from Washington and Green County.

Her name was a familiar one to the audience, as prior to her crowning, she had won an outstanding presentation award and the Miss Congeniality honor, voted on by her fellow contestants.

For her presentation, she dressed as a coach for what she referred to as the "real team," and told her audience the difference between products made with milk versus those imitation products.

Dressed in a rosy-salmon gown, Tamara, a freshman at Waynesburg College, majoring in elementary education, was the first finalist to answer the question, "What advice would you give to parents raising teenagers?"

"Be loving and supportive," Tamara answered, adding, "I want to be a friend to my child."

Although she had already received the presentation and congeniality honors, the final win came as a surprise.

"I'm so excited I can't stand it," laughed the new princess, brushing tears from her eyes. "If I don't stop crying I'm going to dehydrate."

On a more serious note, Tamara talked about her goals for the upcoming year.

"I'm going to get out there and push milk and dairy products," she explained. "I'm going to earn my title."

Aiding Tamara in her milk promotion will be her first and second runners-up.

First runner-up was Bradford County's representative Anita Dawn Wrisley, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wrisley, Bradford.

A tearful Tamara Lynn Cree took her first runway talk Tuesday night as Pa.'s new State Dairy Princess.

When she was asked the question of what advice to give to parents raising teenagers, she talked of giving the teens "honesty and responsibility."

Anita is a junior at Troy Senior High School.

The second runner-up was Lancaster County's Boni Gochenaur, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Gochenaur, Willow Street.

Boni, too, was asked what advice she would give parents raising teens.

"Just give them all you've got and love them," Boni explained. "They really need that in their growing up years."

Boni is a student at Lancaster Mennonite High School.

The other finalists were: Karoly M. Grubb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Grubb, Bedford County; Kathleen Kim Worley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Worley, Crawford County; Jodi Lynne Meabon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Meabon, Erie County; and Laura Still, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Still, Warren County.

Winners of the outstanding presentations, in addition to Tamara, were April Kroll, Beaver-Lawrence County, who dressed as a clown, and sang several commercial jingles, revised to promote milk, and Amy Young, Clearfield County, who adapted the song "In the Mood" to promote milk.

Other winners of the evening were Constance E. Ohlinger, Mohrsville, and Angie S. Brandt, Somerset County, both winners in the scrapbook competition.

On hand to crown the new winner was last year's State Princess Jolene Sue Snyder. As her last minutes on stage drew to a close, Jolene had a message for the crowd.

"This will always be part of my life," she said. "I've gained so much. Thank you very much for all your love and support."

Judges for the evening were Robert Rawlins, Dr. Francis Daniel, Mrs. Sue Hamill and Mrs. Beverly Fledderjohann. Scrapbook judges were Mrs. Phoebe Bitler and Mrs. Susan Howes.

Tamara Cree, Washington and Green County, won an outstanding presentation honor for her explanation of the benefits of "real" milk products, prior to being crowned the new princess.

Also winning an award for her presentation was Clearfield County's representative, Amy Young, who revised the song "In the Mood."

Feel Like Experimenting with Grapes? Call Rubye

BY KIMBERLY HERR

FAWN GROVE — Using the natural sugar of grapes, it may be possible to cut down or eliminate the amount of white sugar added to juices, jams and jellies.

This idea is of great interest to Ruby Kosko, co-owner of a 15-acre vineyard in Fawn Grove, York County.

The sprawling Esdraelon Vineyards was purchased by Rubye and Jack 10 years ago, and it has been expanding ever since. Rubye and Jack live in Baltimore, Md., and during the week, Jack has a contracting business, and Rubye is his secretary. Every weekend, they travel to the vineyards to tend to their grape business. While the Koskos are in Maryland, the vineyard is in the hands of their daughter, Kathy.

Since Ruby is kept so busy with the two businesses, she has practically no spare time for experimenting with how grapes can be used in jam and jelly recipes to replace white sugar.

She explained that the French Hybrid grapes are higher in natural sugar content than table grapes. She uses Marechel Foch grapes to make juice and adds no sugar at all.

By using a reflectometer, which she explained is a sugar meter, Rubye proved how much more sugar is found in the Hybrid. Rubye squeezed some grape juice onto the glass surface of the reflectometer and the sugar content registered on a scale.

The Concord grapes, according to Rubye, usually register between 16 and 18 percent sugar, while the Foch grapes have 23 to 24 percent sugar, and sometime even more.

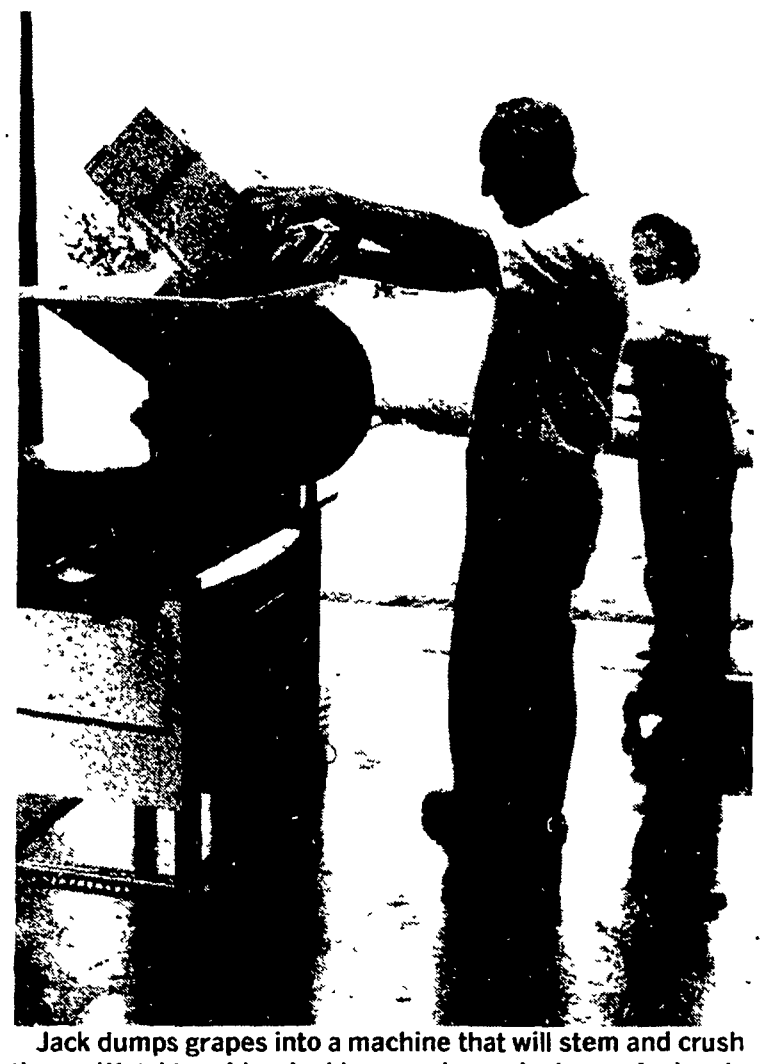
"We make juice from them and don't add anything at all," Ruby said.

That pure grape juice is often given as samples at the vineyard, as are various samples of the different types of grapes. In addition to the Foch grape, some of the other varieties include: the Festive, which is a large grape that Penn State University is currently experimenting with for its ability to be preserved; the Canadice, a seedless table grape; Rougeon, a red grape, often used to add color to wine; Chancellor, which, according to Rubye "makes a delicious wine;" Steuben, "My favorite for taste of the red table

(Turn to Page B24)

The Marechel Foch grape is very sweet. Ruybe makes juice with it and does not add any other ingredients. All the vines in the vineyard are labeled to make it easy on the pick-your-own customers.

Jack and Rubye Kosko spend weekends working at their vineyards in Fawn Grove. They have 20 different varieties of grapes. Rubye is interested in finding out whether the natural sugar in grapes can eliminate or reduce the need for white sugar in jam and jelly recipes.



Jack dumps grapes into a machine that will stem and crush them. Watching him is his grandson, Andrew. Andrew's mother, Kathy, manages the vineyards during the week when the Koskos are in Maryland.

Call Rubye

grapes," Rubye said; and Vidal, a green wine grape, which, according to Rubye is one the "favorite white wine grapes on the East Coast." All in all, the Koskos have about 20 varieties of grapes, and they will harvest approximately 30 tons of grapes this fall..

Business has been good this year since, unlike other crops, the grapes loved the drought conditions. The high amounts of sunshine increased the sugar content, and the lack of moisture prevented many of the diseases common to grapes.

"We had to buy grapes from three other vineyards just to fill the orders," Jack said.

The Koskos' interest in buying a vineyard began when they joined the American Wine Society, and many of the grapes they sell go to home winemakers. Rubye explained that groups come to their pick-your-own vineyard and make a party out of picking the grapes. The Koskos provide the machinery which stem and crush the grapes. They also have a presser to get all the juice from the fruit.

The Koskos make their own wine, and Jack has won national prizes for his dry table wines.

Rubye, who has little time to cook or experiment with new recipes has put together a booklet of grape recipes. One of her favorite recipes for a quick party snack is frosted grapes. She rolls the grapes in sugar, then serves them as is or frozen.

Time for entertaining, however, must be squeezed in between business appointments, trips to the vineyard and classes they take concerning grapes. They have both attended classes at Penn State University and others at locations too numerous to remember.

Rubye and Jack have also traveled through France and Germany, touring the vineyards there.

"We are infants in grape growing here," Jack explained. "Europe is much more advanced."

But Betty would like to do a little advancing on her own as far as experimenting with the natural sugar of grapes is concerned.

"I would like for someone to do some experimenting," Rubye said.

But if you don't have time to test Betty's theory on natural sugar, you may prefer to try out one of the following recipes from her booklet.

PICKLED GRAPES

Rinse and stem two cups of large dark grapes and put them into a one-quart jar. Combine one cup each of packed brown sugar and water, 1/2 cup cider vinegar and one tablespoon whole mixed pickling spices. Bring liquid to a boil and boil for three minutes. Pour liquid over grapes, let grapes cool and chill, covered. Let stand for at least 48 hours and serve with lamb or use as you would olives.

BRAISED PORK STEAKS WITH GRAPE APPLES

2 large pork shoulder steaks
3 large apples
2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons fat
1/2 glass (4 oz.) grape jelly
3/4 cup boiling water

Dredge steaks in flour and brown in hot fat. Add 1/4 cup water, cover tightly, and cook very slowly until tender, about 45 minutes. Pare apples, core and cut into halves. Dissolve grape jelly in boiling water, add apples and cook until tender. Serve around pork steaks.

GRAPE STUFFING

Saute one cup finely chopped onion, 1/3 cup minced celery, 2 tablespoons minced parsley and one teaspoon thyme in 1/2 stick butter until onion and celery are soft. Add one cup seeded halved grapes, 1/2 cup chicken broth and 1/4 cup raisins. Bring liquid to a boil.

Add four cups toasted bread cubes and salt and pepper to taste.

GRAPE SAUCE

2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup water
1 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons margarine
1/2 teaspoon grated orange rind
2 cups seedless or seeded grapes

Mix sugar and cornstarch in a pan and slowly stir in orange juice and water. Cook over low heat, stirring until sauce comes to a boil. Continue to stir and simmer for one minute. Add margerine, orange rind and the grapes. Simmer for 2-3 minutes more. Can be served immediately over angel food cake, pound cake or ice cream. Sauce can be stored and reheated.

Five-Year Fair Veteran Wins Sheep Show

BY ROBIN PHILLIPS
Staff Correspondent

Reading — "Berks County always has good ones," the judge stated when referring to the 194 entries of sheep in the 1983 Reading Fair.

Judging the sheep was Dr. Robert Herr, Lancaster County, a Dorset breeder, and head of the Vo-Ag Department of Eastern Lancaster County Stating that there were "excellent representatives of these seven breeds," at this year's fair, Dr. Herr selected the Oxford ewe of Glenn Heffner, R2, Fleetwood, as the Supreme Champion over the other breeds shown.

Glenn, a five-year veteran of the sheep show ring, his brother, Jim, and sister, Joyce, own 42 head of sheep on the farm of his parents, Mary and Wilson Heffner. The children started with three sheep in 1977, and it just kept going, their mother stated.

"It started as a market lamb project...It was supposed to stay that, but it didn't," she added

The judge lined up the seven breed champions and after a great deal of scrutinizing, shook Glenn's hand This victory topped off the evening for Glenn as he had earlier took Reserve Champion Showman, behind his brother Jim. Reserve honors of the Supreme Champion went to the Southdown Champion belonging to the Lehigh County FFA.

Glenn's older brother, Jim, also had his share of the championship rosettes as he received Grand Champion Showman, Champion Hampshire, and Champion Suffolk ewe. The youngest Heffner sibling was not to be left behind as Joyce took Championship honors in the Cheviot breed.

Jim Heffner, R2, Fleetwood, was named the Grand Champion Showman of the 1983 Sheep show.

Roy and Randy Sutliff pose with their Shropshire Champions. From Mohrsville, 12 year old Randy, beat older brother Roy, for the championship.

In the Shropshire breed, a first time champion was named as Randy Sutliff and his Yearling ewe were named champions over the Reserve entry of his older brother, Roy.

"I'm very surprised I beat Roy," Randy exclaimed.

Showing his sheep for four years, this was the first time 12-year-old Randy, beat his brother in the championships. The sons of Rod and Esther Sutliff, Mohrsville, the boys care for approximately 30 head of sheep at home.

Mike Koehler, Schnecksville, handled the Champion Dorset. A member of Lehigh County FFA, Mike raises his sheep on his parents' Rising Sun Farm and hopes to expand his 30 head into a band of 50 to 60 brood ewes. He raises Dorsets and Cheviots and states that he is really pleased with his champion, "Tracey

Joshua Grim took Champion Fitting honors with Glenn Heffner, named as Reserve Champion Joshua, R2, Breiningsville, is in his eighth year of showing and shows his 20 head of home-bred animals, as/does his sister, Ruth.

Fred Bube took top honors in the Market Lamb competition and was named Grand Champion over the Reserve, Marianne Yanos. Presented a banner by Elton Weitzel, Fred exhibited "a very trim lamb, "according to Dr Herr

In the blocking and grooming contest, Dr. Herr looked for "the way you went about it . and the lamb before you started," and selected Tricia Werley, Shoemakersville, in the Junior Division for the top spot First place in the Senior Division went to Ruth Grim, Breiningsville

Rookie sweeps York Fair FFA honors

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — With one small brush as his sum total of show equipment, rookie hog exhibitor Don Wilt, of the Northern High School chapter, swept the York Fair's FFA market hog competition.

As the dust cleared from the hog judging, Wilt carried off both the champion and reserve honors with his crossbred entries, wrapping up his first stint as a hog exhibitor in grand style.

The Duroc X Spotted X Berkshire grand champion weighed in for the sale at 245 pounds and broke all previous York Fair sale records when the bidding was over. Ezra Good, representing Hatfield Packing Company of New Jersey, was the successful buyer with his winning $3.05-per-pound bid.

Back in the sale ring with the reserve 250-pound Yorkshire X Chester White, Wilt's grin widened even further as auctioneer Bob Bair coaxed the price to $2.05. York feed company, Spangler and Sprenkle, Inc., was the successful bidder on the reserve hog.

His first venture into "show business," has now developed into a full-blown case of "show fever," according to the 17-year-old senior in Northern's vo-ag work-study program. Although he borrowed "everyone else's equipment," and relied on others for advice, he now plans on a long career of showing hogs.

Wilt's major FFA project area in his job as an assistant herdsman at the Jerry Rutter hog operation, near Dover. The winning pair, and a third pen-mate which took first in its weigh category, were from the Rutter farm's breeding lines, and selected by Wilt at feeder pig size.

In FFA breeeding swine competition, a young couple from the Red Lion chapter were top winners in the Berkshire division and split the exhibitor awards.

Beth Innerst's entry book the champion ribbons, while she was named the master fitter, and Greg Innerst exhibited the reserve winner and earned the master showman title.

Other top Red Lion winners included Gus Parlett, who took top honors in the Spotted Hog division, and Michele Bankert, sweeping the Landrace competition.

Ron Wilson of Kennard Dale FFA topped the field in the Yorkshire exhibits.

Red Lion's Barbara Marks was the big winner in the FFA dairy contest, earning grand champion Holstein honors with her 5-year-old, and capping that by taking both the master fitter and showman awards. Her 4-year-old was named reserve senior champion.

Junior champ and reserve grand in the Holstein division went to Jon Hash of Kennard Dale, with his senior yearling entry, while his senior calf earned reserve junior honors.

Dover FFA came up with a solid line of purples during the sheep exhibiting. Daryl Reeded captured grand champion in the breeding sheep category with his ewe lamb, over Bryon Waggoner's reserve champion yearling ewe.

In market lamb judging, Lori Weaver won out over fellow Dover chapter member Allan Crisamore for the champion and reserve slots.

Tim Flory took the lone Red Lion top win in the sheep exhibit, earning the master showman award.

Beef judging wound up with Dover's Jim Eisenhour earning the grand champion honors with his heifer entry, over classmate Deb Hoffman's reserve heifer.

In the beef finishing, John Eaton took both top awards, with his heavyweight entry named the champion over his lightweight steer, which was the reserve winner.

Eisenhour and Eaton then split the exhibitor awards, with Eisenhour named master showman and master fitter honors claimed by Eaton.

Locate Plants to Avoid Disease

Trees and shrubs in a home landscape can represent a considerable investment. To protect that investment, they must be planted properly in an environment that meets their needs.

Fall is an ideal time to set out many ornamentals. But before tackling any landscaping project, University of Delaware extension plant pathologist Bob Mulrooney advises homeowners to make sure the planting site they choose meets the requirements of the plant they want to put there — particularly in terms of drainage and light.

Some plants tolerate "wet feet" better than others, Mulrooney says. These are the ones to select for problem spots near downspouts, or other places where water stands after a rain.

In general, however, he recommends avoiding low, poorly drained areas when setting out trees and shrubs. This is especially true for azaleas, rhododendrons, Japanese andromeda and related plants. These are very susceptible to phytophthora, a water mold or fungus which causes root rot.

To find out whether soil in a particular location drains properly, follow this rule-of-thumb. Dig a hole (any width) 10 inches deep. Then fill it to the top with water. All the water should be gone in 10 hours. If it's not, choose another spot or modify the existing site to improve drainage, Mulrooney advises

Just as some plant are more sensitive to set soil, so others are sensitive to certain light conditions. For example, shade-loving plants may suffer undue stress when placed in full sun. The reserve is true when sun-lovers don't get enough light.

"My favorite way to illustrate this point," says Mulrooney, "is to tell about the case of the prostrate junipers planted as a ground cover under two beautiful crabapple trees." Junipers, incidentally like full sun. Where these particular junipers were growing directly under the crabs, they were severely stunted and badly diseased by phomopsis, a tip blight. By contrast, plants growing beyond the dripline of the trees had shot up to normal height, had good color and were disease-free.

To avoid such problems, Mulrooney advises homeowners to consult with their nursery or extension office, or a good reference book when deciding what plants to put where.

Avoid problem plants, he says Use species that relatively free of minor insect or disease pests. And plant them where they will be free of the kinds of stress described earlier.

"A few landscape plants have disease resistance, but always ask if the cultivar you are considering has any resistance," he says. Progress has been made in selecting crabapple cultivars that are scab-resistant And some junipers are now resistant to tip blight

Having selected plants that have a good track record in this part of the country, put them where growing conditions are favorable, provide adequate water and fertilizer, and use sound horticultural practices in caring for them In turn, they should have fewer insect and disease problems and will become a more valuable part of the landscape

Costuming calves and gulping ice cream

BY JOYCE BUPP
Staff Correspondent

YORK — With the pressures of showring competition behind them, York 4-H dairy members enjoyed their annual fun nite" of dairy promotion at the York Fair by costuming calves and gulping ice cream Sporting cardboard 'golden arches," and adorned with Real Seal logos, a patient Guernsey calf paraded to first place in the calf dressing contest.

Dubbed "We're Real," the winning entry was by Paul and Annie Rauhauser, who designed their accompanying costumes after McDonald's food containers. The promotion was based on the popular fast food chain's recent adoption of the Real Seal to designate their use of real dairy foods.

The youngsters are the children of dairy farmers Pat and Charles Rauhauser, Admire Road, Dover.

Meanwhile, 4-H'er Donna Wilson kicked off her shoes, dressed in a peasant-style skirt and blouse and carried a basket overflowing with fresh grapes to win the judges approval in the commodity dressing

Siblings Chad and Amy Trimmer captured not only a ribbon but the audience's hearts with their costuming for the open-class commodity dressup

The pair of toddlers were garbed to the theme of the milk advertising for 'the winning pitcher " Amy sported a milk-pitcher design, plus a catcher's mitt and plastic baseball, to be tossed to her big brother, dressed like a milk glass swinging a plastic mini-baseball bat.

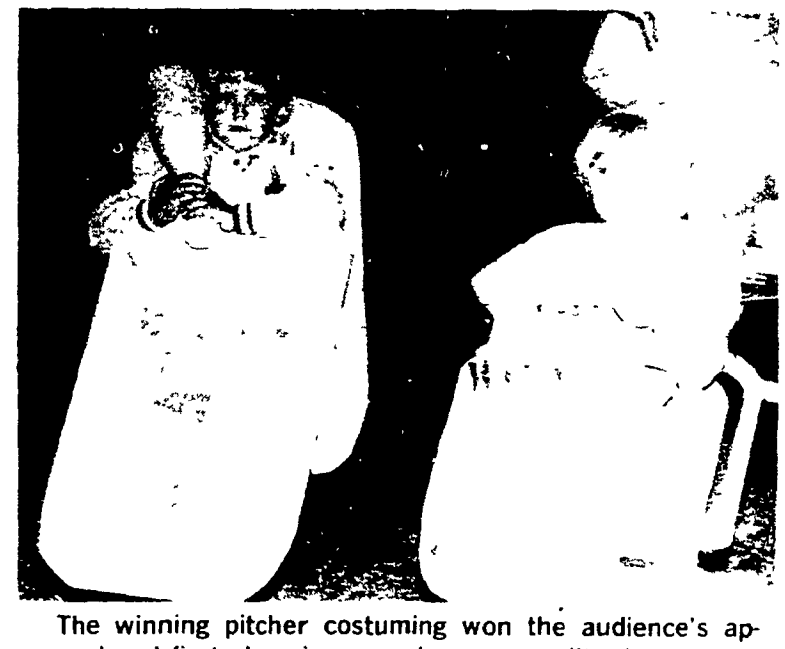
Chad and Amy are the children of Shirley and Larry Trimmer, East Berlin R1.

In the fun nite finale, a few brave pairs of 4-H'ers bellied up to a picnic table in the center of the arena, allowed themselves to be blindfolded, and then proceeded to feed their teammates dishes of vanilla ice cream.

Goal of the contest was to empty the dish first, spoonful by spoonful preferably into the teammates mouth and not his lap

Everyone who took part was a pronounced winner

Paul and Annie Rauhauser captured first-place in the 4-H calf dressing at York Fair with their take-off on McDonald's use of the Dairy Real Seal promotion.



The winning pitcher costuming won the audience's approval and first place in open class commodity dressing for tots Chad and Amy Trimmer.

Ladies Have You Heard?

Dates Are An All-Season Food

Some people think dates were put on this earth to be used as a holiday delicacy. Others use them throughout the year as a nutritive food that has the surprising ability to make other things tast more interesting ... such as dressings, stuffings and sauces, as well as salads, meats, breads, cakes and cookies. In fact, there's practically no food that dates will not add a special accent to.

Of course, as you know, dates are delicious by themselves, or as a tasty snack for a bridge party or club meeting. Some people keep dates handy for the lunch box and after-school snacks. Athletes like dates because they are rich in quick energy-giving sugar that is easily utilized by the body.

Dates are rich in potassium, iron and niacin and also supply some calcium, phosphorus, thiamin and riboflavin ... in fact, they are almost a complete food by themselves.

So, you see, there are many ways to use dates during all seasons of the year ... you don't have to wait for the holidays to enjoy them.

Put your dates in the refrigerator after you buy them, and they will keep for months. Remember to keep your dates away from strong flavored foods, as they absorb flavors much like butter does.

Here's a couple of good ideas for using dates:

Date Orange Muffins

2 cups sifted all purpose flour
3 teaspoons double acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup granulated sugar
1 egg
¾ cup milk
¼ cup orange juice
¼ cup grated orange peel
¼ cup melted shortening
1 cup chopped dates

Preheat oven to 425°. Grease 12 2½ inch muffin pans. Sift dry ingredients. Beat egg until frothy and add remaining ingredients. Make a well in flour mixture and add milk mixture all at once. Stir quickly - don't beat - until barely mixed. Fill muffin cups ⅔ full. Bake 25 minutes or until cake tester or toothpick comes out clean when inserted in center.

Quick Energy Pick Up

1 egg
6 fresh dates, halved
1 cup orange juice

Put egg and dates in blender and process until almost smooth. Add orange juice and process until slightly frothy. Pour into glass and garnish wiht a strip of orange peel.

Expand Your House With Renovations

Are you squeezed for space? If you are, you can make your small house look larger with some simple renovations.

Turn a large room into an open "country kitchen." You can use the space as a place to cook, a place to eat, a family room, or a place to entertain guests informally. No need for the cooks in your home to be isolated from family and fun while preparing meals.

Take out a wall and combine two small rooms into one larger one. Open a small space within a wall to create the feeling of one room merging into another. But before you begin to move walls around, consult a contractor to be sure you don't damage the structure of your house.

Plan your garden to be an extension of your inside living areas. A patio or terrace located outside your living room can make a pleasant space for summer entertaining.

Eliminate small or awkward windows, especially if they are on the north side of you house and don't contribute to passive solar heating of your house in the winter. However, before you begin, be sure you aren't eliminating needed lighting or ventilation. If you remove a window, you may want to add a skylight – they not only let in light but also can make your room appear more spacious.

Corn, beans to be featured at Crops Day

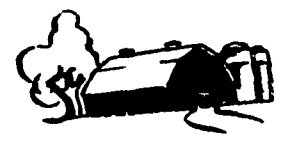
ROCK SPRINGS - Both corn and soybeans will be featured at the 1983 Annual Crops Day to be held Tuesday at the Agronomy Research Farm of Penn State, nine miles southwest of State College on Rte 45 west. Tours will start at 9:30 a.m. and end at 4:00 p.m. Lunch will be available at the farm.

A lot of components must fit together to obtain satisfactory corn yields, says Elwood Hatley of Penn State's Extension Service, College of Agriculture. Several of these factors are: use of starter fertilizer; appropriate rate and timing of nitrogen application for efficient nitrogen use; using manure to supply nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium; and handling hard-to-control weeds. Research and extension agronomists will discuss the most recent information on these and other timely topics.

Corn is the major grain crop grown in Pennsylvania, serving as a cash crop and as a feed crop. Soybeans, on the other hand, are considered a cash crop and are planted on acres not required for feed production. The interest in soybeans has increased over the past five years, Dr. Hatley noted, because farmers are seeking alternative crops for their rotation.

Soybeans are considered a new crop by many Pennsylvania farmers. The growth and development of soybeans differs from corn, and as a result different considerations must be given to the management of this crop. Selecting the appropriate variety, proper inoculation, and effective weed control are three major factors for successful soybean production, Dr. Hatley pointed out. Establishing the appropriate plant population in narrow rows is a major step in obtaining satisfactory weed control and profitable yields. These and other topics will be discussed by Penn State Agronomists.

In addition to topics relating to corn and soybeans, time will be provided for discussing fall management of forages and winter small grains.



Convert little used space into something you can use all the time. Attics make great bedrooms. Garages and basements can often be turned into family rooms. A porch can be enclosed and become an extra bedroom or study. As you plan to make these changes, be sure you also plan for storage space.

Portions of rooms can sometimes be converted to a double use, especially if your house has high ceilings. A loft can be an attractive architectural addition as well as give you extra space.

Fall is an excellent time to reconsider the spaces in your home. As your family and interests change, so can your home.

Del. to track gypsy moth

Dover, Del. - Delaware Deparment of Agriculture entomologists will be tracking the movement of the gypsy moth in Delaware this fall and winter.

Forest entomologist Lynn Harrison says gypsy moth egg mass surveys will be undertaken on selected public and private lands. "We hope to sample many privately-owned woodlots around the state in addition to state-owned forests to get a better idea of where the gypsy moth is spreading," says Harrison. "With the cooperation of landowners, we can get a more accurate picture of the gypsy moth's movement."

Any landowners wanting to have their woodlots included in the survey should contact the Delaware Department of Agriculture and request an Egg mass Survey Form. This form must be filled out and returned to the D.D.A. by October 10, in order to allow State entomologists to begin their surveys.

Harrison says the gypsy moth appears to be spreading southward in Delaware, and residents of the western Sussex County can expect to see defoliation from the pest next year

Mark Mapes Dave Wert

Farmer Mark Mapes and Dave Wert, who works for Farm Bureau at Mifflinburg, Pa., are impressed with EASTLAND E722X being introduced this Fall. It was the highest yielder in Mark's test plot last Fall at 162.4 Bu/Acre. Harvest moisture was 24.3% before adjusting to 162.4 dry bushels. Dave says this single cross can be a powerful hybrid on your farm because:

1. E722X Has A Top Record For Yields Like Mark's 162.4 Bu/A.
2. It Has Long, Deep Kerneled Ears That Dry, Pick & Shell Nicely.

220 head top $86,000 in Indiana sale

BY DONNA McCONAUGHEY

INDIANA — Indiana County 4-H and FFA members sold 220 head of hogs, sheep, and steers for over $86,000 recently during their twenty-first annual Junior Livestock Sale.

Although it was not a record-breaking sale, prices certainly provided a bonus for the youth when current market prices were considered.

Perhaps the most outstanding feature of this year's sale was that eight out of twelve champions were bred by Indiana County residents with most being bred by the 4-H and FFA members themselves.

The Grand Champion Hog was a Duroc-Berkshire crossbred exhibited by Linda Winebark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Winebark, of Rochester Mills. The Winebarks have bred and exhibited numerous champions at the Indiana County Fair, as well as state and national shows. This year's stretchy champion sold for $5.25 a pound to Joe Defelice, of Punxsutawney.

The Reserve Champion Hog was also homebred. Stacey Fyock, of Penn Run, showed her Hampshire hog to win the first championship of her three-year 4-H career. Stacy's father, Tracy Fyock, farms with an uncle where they have a 50 sow, commercial farrow-to-finish operation and also finish approximately 100 steers. Stacey sold her prize-winner to Luther Ford Auto and Truck Sales of Homer City for $3.00 a pound.

Locally bred stock also dominated the hog carcass show with both the Champion and Reserve having been bred in Indiana County.

Twelve-year-old Julie Scott, of Clarksburg, won the Champion Hog Carcass honors with a Duroc she purchased at the McConaughey-Winebark sale. The carcass weight was 149 pounds, Backfat-0.9 inches, Length-31.0 inches, Loin Eye-4.6 square inches, Quality Score-3, Ham weight-17.4 pounds, and Lion weight-15.5 pounds.

Julie noted that she tried a change of strategy from her past four years of showing hogs which resulted in her first championship. In the past Julie has saved her "best" hog for the live show. Despite her win, Julie isn't sure which way she'll try it next year...she'll just wait and surprise everyone.

The Grand Champion Hog Carcass sold to Indiana Show 'N Save for $3.00 a pound.

Mike Orr, of Creekside, was also ba first time championship winner with his homebred York-Hamp cross Reserve Champion Hog Carcass. Mike recently graduated from Marion Center High School and works on the home farm where his family raises 250-300 head of York-Hamp-Landrace cross hogs.

Mike's hog cut a 136 pound carcass with 0.8 inch Backfat, 30 inches in Length, Lion Eye-5.1 square inches, Quality Score-2, Ham Weight-15.6 pounds, and Lion Weight-13.9 pounds. It sold to Keystone National Bank-Indiana Branch for $4.50 a pound.

(Turn to Page B31)

Donald Bishop, right, of Homer City exhibited the Grand Champion Market Lamb which sold to Luther Elkin of Elkin Concrete located in Indiana for $4.40 a pound.

The Grand Champion Holstein in Open and 4-H competition of the Indiana County Fair was shown by Brenda Nesbit of Marchand.

Congress Returns

Congress returns to Washington this week after their summer recess. We'll see how well dairymen did their "homework" on the Congressmen while they were back in their Districts the last few weeks by what action they take in Washington on dairy price support legislation.

As you know, the President vetoed the Senate Resolution delaying the second 50 cent assessment until October 1 so it is in effect now on September milk. Some accused him of a lack of understanding of the dairy situation but it may have been his method of putting Congress on notice that if they want something different they better get it on his desk. It has been over a year since the legislation allowing the refundable deduction was passed and it has been delayed three times already. If that wasn't his intention it still may prod Congress into doing something to get rid of the assessments in spite of filibusters among their colleagues to block dairy legislation if it's tied to a freeze on grain price supports.

In any case, the ball now is definitely in Congress' court to write a new dairy bill and send it to the White House. If they write a good bill that is vetoed, then you can come down hard on the administration. Besides, Congressman had five weeks to see how bad things were back on the farm and may be in a more determined mood to do something not only on dairy price supports but also about relief to designated diaster areas.

However, even more important developments have occurred during the recess including the death of 269 passengers on Korean Air Lines Flight 007 that was shot down by a Russian fighter plane and the death of four and the wounding of 25 U.S. Marines in Lebanon in the last two weeks. So, foreign affairs will be the center of attention in Congress and it may be difficult to get them to consider farm legislation for a while. Even a Russian grain embargo may be involved if other countries pressure us into it to match their reprisals on the Soviets. It isn't likely now but watch the events of the next few weeks.

New Ball Game

With or without new dairy price support legislation it's going to be a new ball game for milk production back at the farm this fall and winter, so you better start figuring on making some adjustments. The combination of lower milk prices and increasing grain prices is producing a 180 degree turn in herd management. New USDA crop production estimates will be announced this week and no one is expecting good news. In fact, the announcement itself is expected to increase feed prices and unless. Congress does an about face on dairy price supports the farm price of milk will be lower this winter.

Perhaps a good way to illustrate this is the milk price-feed price ratio. That's the number of pounds of a 16 per cent dairy feed equal in value to a pound of milk. Example - in August the average U.S. price of milk at the farm was $13.32 and the average price of feed was $9.45. That would give you a milk price-feed price ratio of 1.41. That's not too bad but a year ago it was 1.49 that's a lot better. The price of milk didn't change but the price of feed went up. Now because of the drought, the PIK program and Russian grain sales, grain prices will rise even faster. And between assessments, diversions, promotions and adjustments farm milk prices will be lower. Using the same grain price as in the example but lowering the milk price one dollar (as we have with two assessments) the milk-feed price ratio drops to 1.30. If you increse feed cost $10 a ton it drops to 1.22, At $20 a ton (which is only a 10 per cent increase) it drops to 1.07. It's generally considered that a ratio of 1.25 is needed for profitable grain feeding and it varies between farms but when you get down to 1.07 everyone is hurting and has to cut back.

The example may be precise because the farm price may drop only 50 cents with new legislation but there may also be a 15 cent assessment for advertising and promotion. On the other hand, the example uses only a 10 per cent increase in feed prices and some predictions go as high as 25 per cent. The important thing to understand is that changes are coming and producers need to make plans to adjust. As I said in my last column - if the problem is adjusting milk supply to demand mother nature has done in two months what Congress and the industry couldn't do in two years.

Welcome Jack

We got a new Extension milk marketing specialist on September 1 when Jack Kirkland joined the faculty at Penn State University. He was raised on a farm in Alabama and attended Troy State and Auburn University there. After service in the Air Force he finished his PhD at Washington State and taught at Southern University in Louisiana before coming to Penn State. Much of his work at Auburn and Washington State was an production costs and the effect of component pricing on farm income. It sounds like a nice blend of farm management and marketing that would have real appeal for dairymen. Give him a few months to get acclimated and settled but when you see him at meetings give him a big Pennsylvania welcome that will keep him warm when he encounters a Pennsylvania winter.

September Base

Now that the Dairy Refund Program started September 1 you really should look at your milk checks for September 1981 and 1982, the average of which will be your base for September 1983. It may be that with some not so drastic adjustments you could qualify for a 50 cent a hundred refund on your September shipments. Because September is the last month of the old marketing year, this will be the only time you can collect a refund for one month. Once the new marketing year starts in October you'll have to wait at least six months and then it would be only 60 per cent of the refund if you qualify and if you apply. September 1983 is unique in that you can collect for only one month. After that it will be the average of six months and 12 months. So, check up and see what your record is. It could be worth a couple hundred bucks if you qualify. Check with your ASCS office.

Cheese promotions boost sales

ROSEMONT, Ill. — Copies of a new booklet, "Cheese Promotions Boost Sales," have been distributed to the dairy industry by the United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA). The free, 3-color, 8-page booklet shows that "Cheese Adds A Slice of Life" promotions held in the fall of 1980 and 1981 increased market sales of cheese by 168 million pounds!

Produced by UDIA's Industry and Member Relations Division, the booklet notes that each million dollars increase in non-brand advertising and promotion increases cheese sales in the total market by 22.7 million pounds! That's the result of a three-year study sponsored by UDIA in cooperation with Wharton Econometrics Forecasting Associates, a Philadelphia research firm.

UDIA solicited promotional funds from its own members, other promotional organizations not aligned with UDIA, and cooperatives. The national promotional organization coordinated programs in 1980 and 1981 for 10-week periods in September, October and November.

The promotional programs included national advertising and point-of-purchase materials carrying the "Cheese Adds A Slice of Life" theme in more than 20,000 supermarkets. Local advertising using the "Slice of Life" theme was placed by UDIA member organizations and other dairy promotion organizations. Food-service advertising was also run with publicity campaigns supporting the total promotion.

The $4.8 million investment in the 1980 promotion resulted in a total increase of 87 million pounds more cheese sales than there would have been without the campaign. A $5.4 million investment in 1981 produced additional cheese sales in the total market of 101 million pounds.

If the United States had not been in a surplus situation during 1980 and 1981, the "Cheese Adds A Slice of Life" campaigns would have increased the price of all milk in the United States by 15 cents per hundredweight during that period. That would have increased dairy farmers' income by $375 million!

The total promotion program of the United Dairy Industry Association includes the non-brand advertising and marketing services of the American Dairy Association, the product and process projects of Dairy Research Inc., and the nutrition research and education programs of the National Dairy Council.

High density livestock creates manure handling problems

LANCASTER — With one of the highest concentrations of livestock and poultry per acre in the United States, Lancaster County, faces numerous problems with the large amounts of manure products created. Other counties in southeastern Pennsylvania and northern Maryland are also facing the same problems.

According to the Lancaster Area Land and Water Resources Study, these livestock and poultry create about 4.5 million tons of animal manure annually. This amount of manure is enough to cover every acre of country cropland with approximately 13.5 tons.

The problems were in part, created by the rapid expansion of the livestock and poultry industry that occurred during the 1970's. Coupled with this period of rapid expansion was a continued decline in the number of cropland acres available for disposal sites. Consequently, too much animal manure is produced each year and too little cropland is available for spreading.

An example of this is a farm with 120,000 laying chickens that would produce 12 million pounds of manure. At maximum spreading rates, according to the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources, a total of 170 acres of corn land would be needed to safely dispose of this manure. This is for the first year of application only. Rates in succeeding years should be reduced based on soil tests and crop yields. Yearly applications of manure without consideration of carry over from previous applications can lead to a build up of soil nitrogen, potassium, and phosphorus to excessive levels. As a result, crop yields can be depressed.

This amount of manure spread on this acreage of land would result in an excess of plant nutrients being applied for crop use. If the spreading rates were adjusted according to crop needs, a total of 453 acres would be needed to dispose of the nitrogen and potassium, while 1,362 acres would be required to dispose of the phosphorus contianed in the manure from the 120,000 laying hens.

Depressed crop yield is not the only problem associated with careless handling of animal waste. It is very easy to pollute surface waters, and there is an ever present danger of polluting the ground water with nitrates. An excess of nitrates in drinking water can lead to the death of baby pigs and "blue baby" disease in humans.

The problems created by animal waste are not without solutions. By applying conservation practices on cropland, the runoff of surface water can be controlled. Surface water should be directly away from known sinkholes in limestone areas.

By storing the manure, plant nutrients can be saved and the manure can be applied at an optimum time for plant use. Injecting or placing down the manure in the soil at time of application also saves nutrients and definitely cuts down on odor complaints from neighbors.

The manure produced in Lancaster and surrounding counties should be thought of as a resource It can satisfy all of the nutrients for growing a corn crop and the excess can be sold. The selling of animal waste could well turn into a profitable enterprise of many farms. It is an idea whose time may have come.

It's High Time for High-Moisture Corn!

It's a fact, high-moisture corn saves time saves dollars and builds better results year after year

Harvesting high moisture corn means you get into the field earlier taking advantage of better weather — which also means more time for fall plowing University studies show as much as a 10% savings through reduced field loss in addition to significantly improved harvestability

But that's only where the savings begin high moisture corn puts more profits in your pocket Consider that you can eliminate the high cost of mechanically drying corn! Current on-farm drying costs are averaging around 10¢ per bushel for a 7 point reduction in moisture And when you consider that research studies have established production records which meet or exceed those of dry corn for beef, hogs and dairy — it's plain to see that good management means a switch to high moisture corn

And high-moisture corn performs best when properly stored in today's modern concrete tower silos The superior insulating ability of light gray concrete, compared to other types of storage means you'll ultimately utilize all the feed power you worked so hard to produce

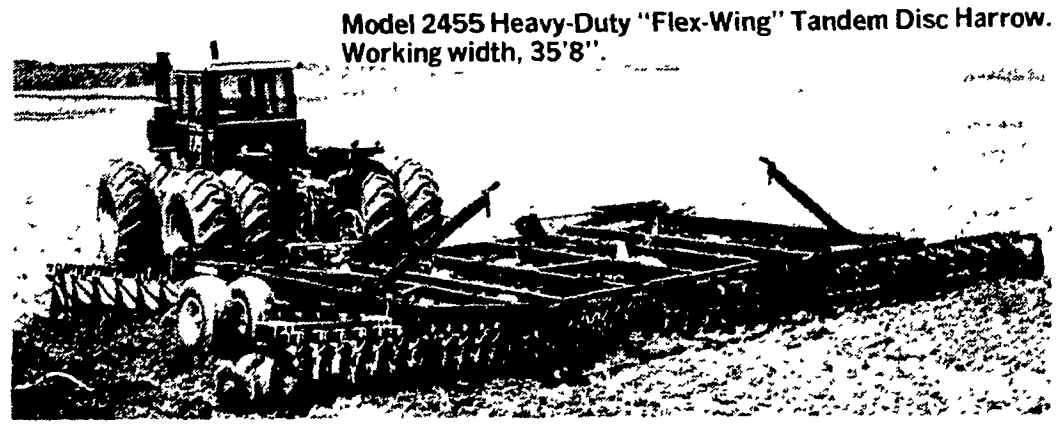
COMPARE CLOSELY
RAUSE DISCS ARE BETTER



Model 2455 Heavy-Duty "Flex-Wing" Tandem Disc Harrow.
Working width, 35'8".

Krause Rockflex Discs are unequalled in the field.

COMPARE

TIE RODS AND SPOOLS

Alloy steel tie rods are 1¾" in diameter on heavy duty units (1½" on medium duty). There's a nut on both ends for easy servicing. Krause spools are ductile iron and weigh 20-30 lbs. each. Precision machined with large diameter bells to fit snug against disc blade. SPOOLS ARE KRAUSE MADE.

COMPARE
DESIGN:

FRAMES
Engineered of super strength steel tubing with cross braces and gussets at major stress points.

WING HINGES
Krause uses big 1¾" diameter bolts on HD units (1½" on medium duty) with over 10" of wear surface area.

We have over 400 rockflex discs in the fields of PA, MD, NJ and DE. These Krause owners continue to prove daily that the Krause disc levels and cuts better than any other disc they've ever owned.

COMPARE
PERFORMANCE: "ROCKFLEX" BEARING ARMS

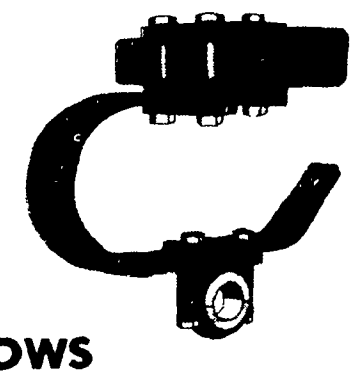
Krause invented the Rockflex" arm in 1965. This C-shaped arm flexes over obstacles. It helps protect disc blades and spools from breakage.



COMPARE

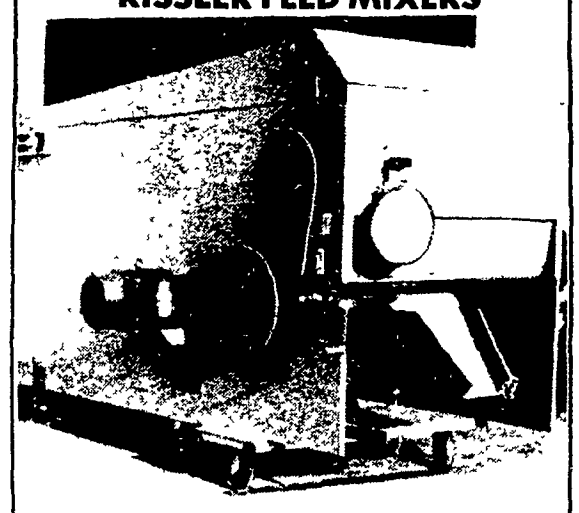
RISSLER FEED MIXERS



More and more farmers are finding that mixed rations are producing healthier and better livestock, plus better feed efficiency. Veterinarians, nutritionists consultants and feed analyst are recommending (TMR) feeding systems. Perhaps you can also increase profits by turning to this system.

This UNIQUE design was developed so farmers can have more for less. A 15,000 lb. pintle web with 2" high paddles will tumble feed from end to end. An auger with left and right flighting will bring feed to center and keep the pile crowned. This auger will mix the feed from side to side at the rate of 1200 lbs. of feed per minute and will unload when drop out is opened. Convenient crank allows flow from 0 to 1500 lbs. a minute whatever desired.

Box is coated with urethane on inside with glass like finish that is abrasion resistant. All stress points are lined with ¼" and 5/16" heavy steel. Heavy duty bearings can be relubricated and easily accessible. Takes less HP than conventional mixers.

Optional stainless steel floor. Electronic or mechanical instant-weigh scales.

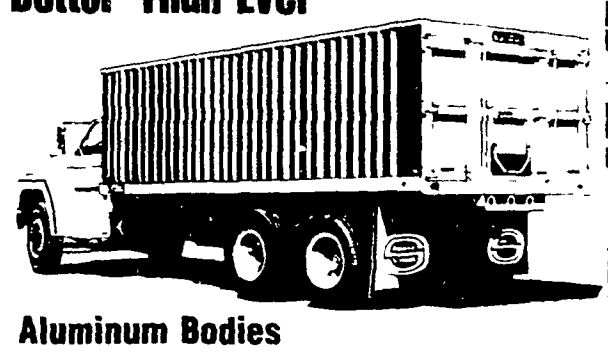
■ Easy-conversion hardwood livestock racks...greater flex and life than steel fold-down racks.

■ A full line of rugged gates...all engineered to make your job easier.

Omaha Standard Hoists

Select a job-matched, precision-engineered Omaha Standard hoist for your Omaha Standard body. Available in twelve models — scissors or the stabilized "Olympic" telescopic line Capacities from 4 to 52 tons.



Aluminum Bodies

■ All-aluminum construction splice-free 60" or 72" high vertically corrugated stakeless sidewalls extruded outrail and tarp rail cap I' beam cross sills

■ Three-section full opening rear doors and swing-out header

■ Greater inside dimensions and light weight give you more hauling capacity and lets you save fuel while doing it

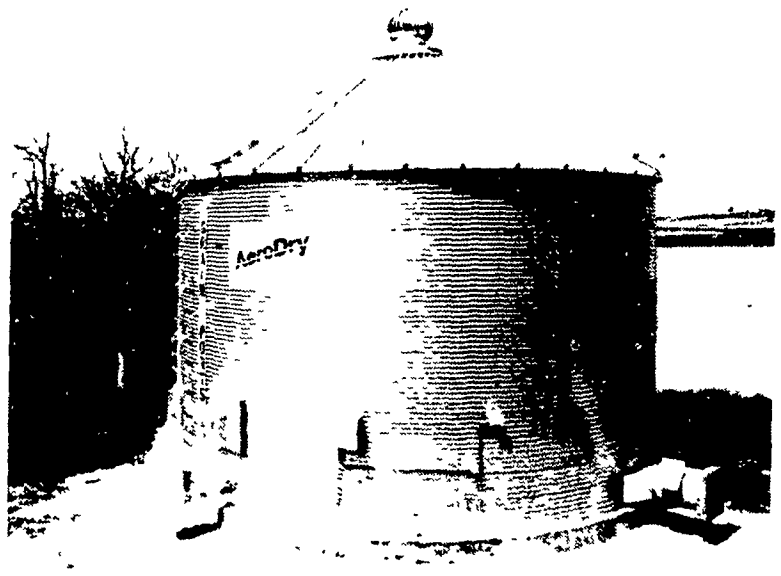
BUSINESS NEWS...



Aero Dry computerizes grain drying

ELVERSON — The AeroDry Computerized Grain Management System can help cut the cost of grain drying and improve the quality of the grain by combining the latest in on-farm computer technology with the time-tested method of natural grain drying.

As the grain kernel dries, it releases moisture into the air around it. Heat drying systems force this process to occur at a quality damaging rate, actually splitting many of the kernels open and forcing out valuable nutrients, starches and sugars.

The AeroDry System uses no expensive, quality damaging heat. A computer controlled system of fans move air through the grain mass at a rate designed to optimize the drying process.

This natural air drying process provides several key money-saving benefits: 1) Energy savings-because there is no costly gasy to buy, 2) Reduced shrink loss - because of the absence of damaging heat, shrink loss is cut by over 50%, 3) Better grain quality - AeroDried grain is heavier, cleaner and retains more valuable starches, sugars and other nutrients 4) Tax benefits - the AeroDry System qualifies for up to a 15% energy investment tax credit, added to the 10% grain storage investment credit, that could be a total tax credit of 25%.

The AeroDry System is controlled by the Model 2200 computer. The 2200 constantly monitors relative humidty of the air, temperature of the grain and the grain moisture level. Using this information, the 2200 will turn the drying fans on when conditions are favorable and off when they are not. Three function modes: drying, storage and manual ensure superior grain drying and storage from the time the bin is filled until it is emptied. Because the 2200 is factory programmed, no special skills are required to run the system once it is installed on the farm.

The AeroDry System can be installed in new or existing bins up to sixteen feet in height. Units are presently in operation throughout the grain growing regions of the country. AeroDry is marketed by Advanced Ag Systems, R2, Box 159, Elverson.

Hess Foods expanding

EPHRATA — Hess Foods announces a major expansion is now in progress at the complex in Ephrata. Total costs will be in excess of $500,000. Plans call for a large addition to the refrigerated storage facilities.

Hess Foods will offer a complete dairy and food service line to major retailers and institutional accounts throughout the Eastern Seaboard. These accounts will be serviced by the company's sales force as well as one of the largest food brokerage firms in New York City.

Additionally, plans call to expand their modern egg production department, which presently processes millions of eggs weekly.

Also, additional vehicles will be added to the fleet to accommodate the increased sales, projected to be $42 million for 1983.

The fully computerized operation will feature all new energy efficient and automated equipment.

The building will be constructed by a local firm, Christ High & Sons, Inc., and completion is planned for the latter part of November.

Poultry waste talks planned

UNIVERSITY PARK — A conference on poultry waste conversion will be held Tuesday, Nov. 22 and Wednesday, Nov. 23, at the J.O. Keller Conference Center at Penn State.

Talks will be given on the best agronomic use of manure to replace some commercial fertilizer on field and horticultural crops; laboratory testing service for manure; geographical location of manure production; waste conversion to biogas, methane, solid fuel, and feed; layer manure drying, litter roasting and logistics of transporting manure.

Also available will be chemistry of manure and production of brine shrimp.

Kubota Corp. holds field days

BY JACK HUBLEY

CAMPBELLTOWN — Area farmers had the opportunity to put Kubota's current line of tractors to work at Kubota Tractor Corporation's Field Days hosted by Risser's Farm Market just east of Campbelltown on Route 322.

The two-day event began on Tuesday, Sept. 13, with a four-hour demonstration of their all-diesel line-up, and continued through the next day when interested farmers took to the surrounding fields in the latest Kubota tractors. Representatives from Kubota Tractor Corporation, as well as Keller Bros. of Buffalo Springs, were on hand to keep things rolling.

Since entering the U.S. market in 1969 with their unique line of mid-sized four-wheel-drive tractors, the Japanese company has grown to 950 dealerships nationwide. With about 115,000 tractors in use here, Kubota is currently rated number four in unit sales, and, according to Assistant Division Manager Mike Broeker, accounts for the lion's share of the diesel tractor market under 40 horsepower.

Based in Compton, Cal., Kubota enjoys wide acceptance throughout the Northeast, with Pennsylvania rating among the company's top five states.

Though the main purpose of Kubota's Field Days was to introduce potential buyers to their selection of 47 to 76 PTO horsepower tractors, the company's total line-up actually begins with the smaller models including the world's first diesel garden tractor introduced about six months ago and available in models ranging from 10 to 14 horsepower.

Broeker explained that Kubota's use of diesel engines, four-wheel-drive, and bevelled gears in place of universal joints throughout the drive train, result in more efficient use of available power. Largely because of its power distribution system, Kubota claims a 35% increase in pulling power over other makes with equivalent horsepower. This permits the use of smaller, lighter units capable of operating in close quarters, and getting to work earlier in the spring under wet conditions. Kubota's four-wheel-drive models account for about 75% of the company's sales.

Dave Keller, Kubota Salesman for Keller Bros. of Buffalo Springs, demonstrates the M6950 4WD tractor.

Dairy industry is 'the odd man out'

JEFFERSONVILLE, Vt. — When it comes to political policy making, "the dairy industry is the odd man out", sometimes even "an embarrassment" within agricultural circles.

This was the comment of Clyde E. Rutherford, Chairman of the Northeast Dairy Cooperative Coordinating Committee, host organization for an East-West Dairy Conference at Jeffersonville, Vt. Representatives of cooperatives, agriculture colleges and government agencies from the Midwest and the Northeast convened on Thursday, Sept. 15, for a two-day exchange of information.

In a brief welcome, the Otego, N.Y. dairy farmer, President of Dairylea Cooperative, Syracuse, N.Y., urged his audience of co-op leaders to create "new money" and "new opportunities" for their farmer members by putting together economically sound working relationships. Such relationships, he said, ranged all the way from outright merger to joint venture.

Rutherford cited the success of Dairylea during the past two years in setting up cooperative business ventures.

He announced that in addition to present marketing arrangements Dairylea has with Agri-Mark (a New England co-op), Atlantic Processing Inc. (a Pennsylvania federation of cooperatives) and Upstate cooperative (in Western New York), a new venture has just been approved between H.P. Hood Inc. of Boston and Dairylea. The new arrangement provides for a partnership of the two organizations to operate the Hood plant at Cuba, N.Y. and the Dairylea plant at Adams, N.Y. In addition, Hood will lease the Dairylea cultured products plant at Vernon, New York and produce products for both organizations.

"It is time we all recognized that there is no easy cure for the problems of the dairy industry," he said. "With few foreign marketing opportunities available to us, we are the 'odd man out' of agriculture. The pressure is for more foreign trade. To some, that means everything from carrots to coconuts but NOT milk because there is already too much milk in world markets at subsidized prices. We are sometimes an embarrassment to our own brothers in agriculture because we must fight for our own survival."

The solution, said Rutherford, is for farmers to support their dairy cooperatives and for those cooperatives to unify their political efforts and their marketing efforts.

"Together, unified in philosophy, and in market effort, we can be the most effective and successful factor in the marketplace. Politically, we can see to it that things like milk taxes are never again imposed. Dairying is already one of the nation's largest single industries. What we need to do is get our act together... totally."

Pfizer acquires Rochelle

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The Federal Trade Commission has approved a settlement enabling Pfizer Inc. to acquire the animal health and feed-additive businesses, plus other assets, of Rachelle Laboratories. The settlement stems from a patent infringement lawsuit against Rachelle and its parent company, International Rectifier Corporation, which Pfizer won. The judgment against International Rectifier was $55.8 million, the largest in patent litigation history.

Pfizer and Rachelle had signed the settlement agreement prior to the final judgement. R.M. Hendrickson, president of the Pfizer Agricultural Division, explained: "We began negotiating this settlement several months ago when it became apparent that International Rectifier would not be able to pay the full amount of the probably damages."

Under terms of the agreement, Pfizer assumes immediate rights to existing inventories of Rachelle's feed additives and animal health products. Most of these products are based on one of two antibiotic compounds — chlortetracycline and chloramphenicol — and are marketed for use with food-producing animals and companion pets as exclusive veterinary pharmaceuticals or over-the-counter products.

The settlement also provides Pfizer with one-half interest in Rachelle's Long Beach, Calif. manufacturing plant. However, according to Mr. Hendrickson, production of the Rachelle product lines will eventually be transferred to Pfizer's own manufacturing plants in Lee's Summit, Mo., and Groton, Conn.

"Once existing inventories are depleted, we will begin production of the Rachelle products at our own plants where our quality control standards can be better enforced," Hendrickson said. "The products will be packaged under the Pfizer logo and we will utilize our existing sales distribution channels for both the feed-additive and animal health lines of products."

60 YEARS OF LEGENDARY PERFORMANCE.

Series 3 Gleaner combines: further ahead than ever.

Gleaner combines were introduced back in 1923. Ever since, they've been proving their worth.. improving their advantages. Now the new Series 3 Gleaner combines—both conventional and rotary—are even further ahead in reliable, productive, cost-effective performance.

It starts with engineering, in the Gleaner tradition of innovative design. With features like the crosswise-mounted cylinder in rotary models, for efficient Natural Flow harvesting. And the unique sure-feed system on all models, that keeps crop moving smoothly without bunching. And dozens more advances that make every Gleaner combine a great performer

Throughout their 60-year history, Gleaner combines have established a solid reputation for quality Today, that reputation is maintained through TQA, the Allis-Chalmers Total Quality Assurance program As it's built, each Gleaner combine must pass 375 separate quality checks—including our own pre-delivery just before you take it home

Farm Credit outlines loan status

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The delinquency rate of Farm Credit System borrowers declined during the second quarter, according to figures compiled by the Farm Credit Administration, but officials see no immediate reversal in the financial condition of troubled borrowers.

"We expected to see continued seasonal variation in delinquencies," said FCA Governor Donald E. Wilkinson, "and though farm prospects are improving, loan performance generally lags behind."

Wilkinson said there is no reason to indicate that overall trends of recent years will not continue at least through 1983. He said some borrowers will be helped significantly by PIK distributions, but others will be hurt further by drought-reduced production and higher feed prices.

The Federal Land Banks reported 20,537 delinquent loans on June 30, 1983, 3.1 percent of the total number outstanding. They had 26,668 delinquencies at the end of the first quarter, 4.0 percent of the loans outstanding. On June 30, 1982, however, the banks reported 16,606 delinquent loans, 2.5 percent of the number outstanding.

The decline in delinquencies among Production Credit Associations was even more dramatic when comparing the first and second quarters. On June 30, 1983, PCAs posted 13,211 delinquencies, 3.7 percent of all loans outstanding. This was a sharp drop from the 22,593 delinquent loans reported on March 31, 1983, which was 6.3 percent of the total. Going back to June 30, 1982, PCAs reported 10,968 delinquent loans, 2.7 percent of those outstanding.

The amount of loans outstanding from the Federal Land Banks increased slightly during the year, from $49.3 billion on June 30, 1982, to $50.9 billion on June 30, 1983. The number of loans outstanding also increased during the period, from 661,802 to 665,794.

The opposite was true for the Production Credit Associations. Loans outstanding declined from $22.5 billion on June 30, 1982, to $20.8 billion on June 30, 1983. During the same period, the number of loans outstanding dropped from 382,041 to 358,612.

Loan growth, FCA officials said, was limited by slow turnover in agricultural land sales, reduced demand for farm machinery because of weak income, substitute financing by Government loan and commodity programs and the reduction in crop acreage resulting from the PIK program.

The efforts of Farm Credit System lenders to service loans and stay with borrowers are evident in the renewal figures, FCA officials indicated. Though Federal Land Bank refinancing of non-real estate debt declined slightly from 17.0 percent to 16.8 percent, refinancing of their own loans increased from 21.0 percent in the first half of 1982 to 22.3 percent in the first 6 months of 1983. Renewals claimed 37.9 percent of PCA loans made during the first half of 1983, compared to 37.0 percent during the same period a year earlier.

Farm Credit News

Despite these efforts, the number of bankruptcies, foreclosures, and loans in the process of liquidation among the Federal Land Banks were all up during the first 6 months of 1983 compared to the same period in 1982.

Bankruptcies increased from 687 to 1,069, foreclosures from 647 to 1,024, and loans in the process of liquidation from 1,290 to 2,458.

The picture for Production Credit Associations was a little brighter. They reported an increase in bankruptcies, from 699 to 861, but foreclosures declined from 484 to 360 and loans in the process of liquidation dropped from 3,093 to 2,894.

While recognizing that farm financial stress is widespread, overall FCA statistics indicate that farmers have generally been successful in meeting their loan commitments to the Farm Credit System.

The repayment rate for Federal Land Bank borrowers during the first 6 months of 1983 rose to 95.6 percent of the 1978-1980 average, compared to 72.2 percent a year earlier. The Production Credit Association collection rate was 81 7 percent, compared to 83.0 percent the previous year.

Bond winners are reported

WEST CHESTER — The Pennsylvania Farm Credit Associations are pleased to announce the winners of their $100.00 Savings Bond door prize drawings at Ag Progress Days. One name was drawn at the close of each of the three days from the tickets collected on that day.

The winner of the Tuesday, August 23, drawing was Mary Jean Grooms of Dayton, Armstrong County. Dorothy Mummau of Shippensburg, Franklin County was the winner on Wednesday, August 24, and the lucky ticket holder for Thursday, August 25, was Donald Hoover of Snow Shoe, Centre County.

The Farm Credit Associations in Pennsylvania cooperated on an exhibit in a 40' x 40' tent which was decorated to reflect the theme..."Agriculture____Growing For You." The exhibit was comprised of as many agricultural products produced in Pennsylvania as could be assembled. Most of those which could not be represented in life were available via a photographic display.

Cooperatives, the Farm Credit Associations in Pennsylvania serve over 21,000 members with an outstanding loan volume which exceeds one billion dollars as of the end of the second quarter.

NEMA to meet Oct. 12-14

HERSHEY — The Northeast Egg Marketing Assn. will hold its annual meeting Oct. 12-14 at Hershey.

Featured on the program will be discussion of current industry problems, including high feed costs and changes in the marketing picture.

Al Pope, president of United Egg Producers, will review the national scene and outline operational plans and goals to improve the financial picture for egg producers. Herbert Jackson, PR director for the American Egg Board, will explains the board's plans for the coming year.

Jim Christensen, Agway poultry feed specialist for Western New York, will cover the feed situation.

Performance tested boars are bargain

NEWARK, Del. — "If you didn't make it to the Delaware boar sale, you missed some bargains," says University of Delaware extension livestock specialist Ken Kephart. Nineteen boars were offered. Seventeen sold for an average of $357. Ronald Harrison from Littlestown, Pa., purchased the top-selling animal for $535. This was a Yorkshire consigned by Edwards and Edwards of Rich Square, N.C.

"Despite the uncertainty in the market, it's surprising the boars didn't sell higher," Kephart says. Considering the following facts, any of these pigs was a good buy.

* The boars had records which were unbiased and impartial.

* All were grown out under the same conditions, so comparisons could be made among entries.

* The poor performers were thrown out. Forty-four boars started the test. Twenty-five were eliminated. That left the top 43 percent for the sale.

* The likelihood is these boars will sire pigs that are cheaper to raise.

"No one can guarantee that a top performance individual will put that performance into his offspring," says the specialist. "But our experience in genetic selection indicates chances are good that he will."

How much can a producer afford to pay for a performance tested boar? Consider just two economic factors–growth rate and feed efficiency.

Growth Rate. At a fixed cost of $5 per head to grow a pig, it's possible to save 50 cents a head with a 10 percent improvement in gain.

Feed Efficiency. Feed currently averages $200 a ton. At that price, a producer can pocket $10 for every 100 pounds of feed saved.

Let's say a prospective buyer has an average herd growth rate (ADG) on his finishing floor of 1.5 pounds per day and a feed effiency (F/G) of 3.5 pounds of feed per pound of gain. He buys a boar with a growth rate of 2.18 pounds per day and a feed conversion ratio of 2.43 pounds of feed per pound of gain. This would have been an average boar in the Delaware test," Kephart says.

"Because he's an intact male, that boar will grow faster and more efficienty than a barrow. So we'll adjust his performance down by 10 percent. Adjusting for this, his "true" level of performance–if he were a barrow–would be 1.96 pounds per day and 2.67 pounds of feed per pound of gain," the specialist says.

Compared to the herd's average daily gain of 1.50 and feed to gain ratio of 3.50, that boar is superior. During growout he put on .46 pounds each day (1.96-1.50 = .46) on .83 pounds less feed (2.67-3.50 = -.83).

How much of this superiority will his offspring have? Taking into account the heritability of each trait and the fact that half the genetic make-up of the offspring comes from the boar, a producer can expect an improvement of .07 pounds per day ADG and .15 pounds less feed required per pound of gain, the specialist says.

To put a price tage on this superiority, multiply the expected improvment over herd average daily gain times the fixed cost required to produce each hog. This shows a saving of 23 cents per hog, in ADG along.

(.07 lb./day x $5.00/hog = .23/hog).

1.5 lb./day

Feed savings can be calculated by multiplying total weight gain times expected feed efficiency improvement times feed value. This gives a saving of $2.55 per hog in feed costs (170 lb. x .15 lb. feed/lb. gain x $.10/lb. feed = $2.55/hog). Together, these improvements amount to total savings of $2.78 per hog ($.23 + $2.55 = $2.78).

Here's the bottom line. If the boar sires 1,000 pigs per year he will save his owner $2,780 (1000 x $2.78 + $2,780) in the first year along. This doesn't take into account any selection in the female line which might also benefit offspring.

"The key is to know the performance level of your herd," Kephart says. "Buy boars that will improve this performance and they'll pay for themselves many times over."

Performance tested boars--they're usually a bargain.

Corn lodging, harvest losses may be excessive

NEWARK, Del. — It's common knowledge that high air temperatures and drought stress during tasseling and pollination may reduce corn yields by 50 to 100 percent. The heat reduces pollen viability, while moisture stress generally delays silking Alone or in combination, these environmental factors may cause erratic kernel formation or barren cobs. Even if corn is adequately pollinated, stress during the blister stage may cause some kernels to abort, resulting in erratic grain formation - especially at ear tips, says University of Delaware extension agronomist William Mitchell. Kernels that don't abort will continue to fill until black layer formation at aproximately 35% moisture.

Although drought and heat stress can thus severely reduce yields, ears will continue to form at the expense of stored materials in the stalk. This depletion of structural stalk materials generally accounts for severe lodging in droughty seasons, the agronomist says.

Since most of Delaware's corn crop was planted later than normal last spring due to extremely wet conditions, ear heights often are excessive, plants taller, insect damage greater and stalks relatively weaker. Add to these factors severe drought this summer, and there's a strong likelihood lodging and harvest losses will be excessive this fall.

In view of this potential, Mitchell advises growers to be prepared to harvest at optimum times, when grain moisture content ranges between 22% and 26%.

There also may be some drought-related storage problems for this year's corn crop. In some cases grain quality appears to be marginal, thus increasing the potential for mold development.

To reduce harvest losses and at the same time discourage mold, Delaware extension plant pathologist Bob Mulrooney advises farmers to pay close attention to corn moisture levels Corn is mature when it reaches 32% to 35% moisture. From this time until the grain is dried to 13% Moisture or cooled below 55 degrees F, aflatoxins can be produced.

If aflatoxins are severe, he says corn should be harvested between 26% and 30% moisture and dried properly. If aflatoxins are present and drying costs excessive, harvest between 22% and 26% moisture. In the absence of aflatoxins, it is most profitable to harvest at 18% to 26% moisture. Below 18%, excessive harvest losses are likely to occur.

Regardless of moisture level at harvest, dry grain to 13% moisture and cool it to 55 degrees F or lower as soon as feasible to prevent further aflatoxin production.

However, take care not to dry grain too rapidly, cautions university agricultural engineer Ken Lomax. Batch-in-bin, automatic batch or continuous flow drying systems are designed for rapid drying When grain is above 26% moisture, be sure to dry at moderate temperatures and cool gradually to prevent development of stress cracks that lead to reduced quality.

Low temprature in-storage drying is not fast enough, he says, unless a very thin layer of grain is added each day. Thicker layers dry so slowly that considerable aflatoxin can be produced before the grain is dry. The moisture level of all grain in the bin should be reduced to 13% before more is added. Most farmers want to fill the bin too rapidly for this type of drying system to be acceptable, he says.

Be sure all grain not dried below 13% moisture is held under forced air to prevent heating. After drying is completed, cool grain to the outside air temperature with forced air to prevent moisture condensation where hot and cooler air meet.

Store all grain below 13% moisture and below 55 degrees F to prevent further aflatoxin production. During cool nights run aeration fans to cool the grain and prevent condensation on the top and sides of the bin as rising warm air comes in contact with cool outside air

Lomax recommends running aeration fans about two hours each week on cool dry days to prevent temperature rise, insect build-up or high moisture spots from developing in the grain

Taking both the grand and reserve grand champion bull honors at the Pa. Polled Hereford Show was Huckleberry Hall Farm. With the grand champion, top, and the reserve champion, bottom, are judge Gary Dean, Pa. Polled Hereford Queen Lisa Brudney, and Tim Livingston.

BY LAURA ENGLAND

YORK — Junior and senior members of the Pa. Polled Hereford Association competed for honors at the association's summer show held during the York Fair, Sunday, Sept. 11.

Junior member competition headed the contest with Suzanne Schmidt and Jackie Kirschner showing the top heifers. Schmidt, Monkton, Md., lead her early junior yearling heifer to the grand championship spot. The heifer, S and J Miss Vind 20L, was sired by Vindicator.

Filling the reserve championship slot was Jackie Kirschner, Monongahela. Kirschner's junior heifer, 5JF Miss Dancer 21R, sired by Wildcat Sundance 7K, won the honor.

Following the junior show, the younger Polled Hereford Association members competed for showmanship honors. Named senior showman was Robert Livingston, Dover. Duane Glessner, Waynesboro, was the intermediate winner and Travis Worley, junior showman.

In the Open Hereford Show, Huckleberry Hall Farms, Smithsburg, Md., dominated the championship arena winning both the heifer and bull honors. Named the grand champion heifer was HHF Sweet Lass 11P, a late junior yearling sired by BT PRL Driver 536L.

The grand and reserve grand champion bull titles were also awarded to Huckleberry Hall Farms. The late junior yearling bull entry; HHF Power Performer 16P, was grand champion. HHF Vindicator 1 17N, an early 2-year-old, was reserve champion.

Selected by judge Gary Dean as reserve grand champion heifer was GS Rockette 289P. Owned by Carl and Lucille Rosenberry of LuRose Estate, Hagerstown, Md., Rosette was sired by Graystone Granite

BY LAURA ENGLAND

QUARRYVILLE — Colored breed owners competed at the Solanco Fair Wednesday with Christine Ambler, Bob Kirk and Helen Arrowsmith earning the championship titles.

Competing in the Ayrshire class, Christine Ambler, Cochranville, paraded her 2-year-old Ambler Acres Rachael to the grand championship spot. Kris Esbenshade, Quarryville, and her heifer, Lucky Lady, received the reserve Ayrshire laurels.

For the second consecutive time, Bob Kirk, Peach Bottom, was awarded grand champion Guernsey honors. His 4-year-old, Cedar Fringe Ingredanna, was named the champion. The reserve title went to an intermediate calf owned by Bob and Joyce Wagner, Quarryville. Bo Joy Tex Lisa was the winner.

In the Jersey show, dairy judge Dale Olver, Lancaster, picked a pair of winners from the Hillacres herd. Helen Arrowsmith, Peach Bottom, and Hillacres Ben Ellen were the grand champion winners. Helen's brother Tom won the reserve title with Hillacres Sampson Belle.

After class judging, which also included a combined 4-H and FFA category, junior showmanship winners were selected. Winners in the 12 and under class were Steve Wagner, Matt Bushong and Michelle Gordon. Named winners in the 13 and over class were Sarah Arrowsmith, Anita Brommer and Kris Esbenshade.

Brockett's Ag Advice

By John E. Brockett

Estate Planning Tools

I find that I use the word 'tools' a lot, perhaps too much. However it is a very handy word. It has so many meanings. In its simplest form we think of hammers, saws or wrenches as tools. Some people consider cultivators, harrows and discs as tools, hence the word tool bar for hitching rod. Thus a tool could be an implement. It can also mean a person used by another person for that second person's purposes. Another meaning is "something that is necessary or useful to a person in the efficient carrying out or performance of his or her job." In estate planning this last one probably is the best definition.

Selection

In your business of farming you select the best tool available for the job you want done. Example: If you had a field to prepare for seeding and your only available equipment were a disc, a mower and a cultivator, which would you use and why? Or we might ask if you could borrow or buy a plow would you use it? Or you might be able to hire someone to do the job. These are all tools.

In estate planning we also use tools. The tractor that pulls everything else would be the will. The will gives you the opportunity to steer everything in the right direction. A trust is like a silo or grain bin. We put things in it for future use. A sales agreement or partnership (or corporation) can also be a tool of estate planning. It would be similar to an elevator or conveyor where we transfer assets from one generation to another on a gradual basis while both generations are working. (think of the two generations as a self unloading wagon and a feed bunk).

Insurance is another estate planning tool. Think of an adjustable wrench as the parallel tool. It doesn't do the job as well as the real thing and there are substitutes for it, but it is mighty handy when you're in the peach orchard and the gizzmo breaks. Or think of it as the guard around the PTO shaft. Sometimes it gets in the way (costs too much) but it does protect against sudden disaster. Or put it on a parallel with that new tractor. You can buy a wide range of packages. Some contain more Hp (end value), some more chrome (gimmicks), some more options (fringes) and some just cost more. Buy it with the same thought you put into buying a new cow or forage harvester. What do you really need (debt coverage, operating expenses, taxes, etc), why do you really need it (business would be lost or damaged), who needs it most (you or your wife or both), how much? Do not be "sold" a package - do some comparing on cost (premium minus dividend), amount of actual insurance (face value less cash value) 5,10 and 20 years from now, convenience, interest paid on cash value and interest charged on loans. Finally before buying look at your alternatives - savings, readily saleable farm assets, other investments - then decide.

How to salvage drought-damaged corn

NEWARK, Del. — Drought damage to developing corn occurs because of a combination of moisture stress as well as high temperatures. July and August provided both conditions.

On dairy farms, this drought-stunted corn may best be used as silage, says University of Delaware extension dairy specialist, Dr. George Haenlein. If there is little or no grain on the stalks, the crop is essentially a forage crop and should be ensiled at between 60 and 65 percent, moisture, he says.

If there are many dry leaves, it should be chopped fine to ensure uniform distribution of plant parts and good packing in the silo. If moisture content is below 55 to 60 percent, add water while filling. However, except in these cases, the specialist recommends coarser chopping.

The reason for this is that coarse chop corn silage (or haylage) maintains fat test in the milk better than other feed. Hay—the only other good source of long fiber—is likely to be in short supply this year, so it's even more important to chop corn stalks coarsely if possible,' Haenlein says.

With a tower silo you're limited because if they're too coarse they won't blow. But this is not a problem with a trench silo.

The feed value of properly harvested and stored stressed corn is acceptable, he says. Total digestible nutrients (TDN) will be around 60 percent and protein content can be higher than in normal corn silage. Because of variability in plant growth and stages of development, he recommends a forage nutrient test to balance a feeding ration. Of course, the tonnage and total nutrient yield per acre are much decreased in many fields this year.

Nitrate poisoning from feeding drought-stricken corn is always a concern of farmers. However, this should not be a problem if precautions are followed. First, nitrate levels can be elevated for three to five days following a recovery rain. Therefore, do not green chop or feed stressed corn for a week following rain. The ensiling process will lower nitrate levels, but feeding should be delayed until after the ensiling fermentation process is completed. This usually takes two to four weeks.

Silo gas is a real danger to humans and livestock—especially if the silage crop is suspected of being high in nitrates. Haenlein says it is important for producers to fully understand this danger and how to avoid it.

ONE SIZE DOESN'T FIT ALL.

Kubota has the field covered with dozens of diesel tractors, from 10 to 76 PTO horsepower.

And while they may vary in size, some things are the same on every model. The Kubota diesel engine, for example.

It's sturdy and dependable, one of the most fuel-efficient diesel engines anywhere. And not only does it use little fuel, it requires little maintenance. There's less noise and vibration too.

So take a look. There's a diesel-powered Kubota in your size.

The Timpte Twins are Tough.

Got Grain? Then get the trailers that are Timpte tough... the Super Hopper or the level floor Super Grain Trailer. They're not only built to take it... they're also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper and the level floor Super Grain Trailers are lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wind drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpte does the hauling best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

Farm Talk

The experts say that a lot of farmers do become depressed and many of them don't seek the kind of help they need. In fact, they can drift along for months in a depressed state because they aren't working for someone who tells them that they have a problem that must be solved.

Some of these chronically depressed farmers make important decisions in this state of mind. Things like selling out or changing enterprises, and in many instances they make gigantic mistakes.

The experts talk about upsets that can be gotten over in a few days. They also talk about depression that can last from a few months to a year or more. And they advise farmers to get help for those kind of problems.

They describe depression as a collection of symptoms occurring at the same time. That list includes low mood, poor appetite, sleeping difficulties, agitation, loss of interest, guilt feelings, aches and pains, anxiety, and even thoughts of death or suicide.

The experts point out that depression can be treated and that it is usually curable. The big problem, they say, is getting farmers and their families to realize that they are depressed and to seek professional help.

Buckwheat Institute to meet at PennAg Convention

EPHRATA — Mr George Blankley, President of the Buckwheat Institute of America, will preside at the Buckwheat Institute meeting during the PennAg Convention held September 25-28th at Seven Springs Resort, Champion, Pennsylvania.

During the meeting, production reports will be given from representatives of Maine, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, and also Winnipeg, Canada. More local reports will be given from representatives of New York and Pennsylvania and will entail, the quantity of buckwheat-sewn acreage local to them, and the condition of the crop as of meeting time. Some of the buckwheat will have been harvested in these areas, so yield/acre as well as quality of crop reports will also be given.

Other segments of the meeting will attend to concerns from a consumer standpoint, and the representative from Japan, the largest importer of buckwheat, will report. Also, a discussion of production competition from South American, South Africa and China is scheduled. In lieu of China's huge export of buckwheat into Japan last year (which severely curtailed U.S. exports), it is hoped that U.S. buckwheat production will out-compete theirs this year.

Buckwheat is a crop with a successful growth history (especially in PA) and is incorporated in such foodstuffs as General Mills 'Buckwheats' breakfast cereal and flour for pancakes and cake mixes. A by-product of buckwheat, gluten, is roasted and exported to Middle East and slavic countries where it is further processed to make 'kasha,' a food high in starch that is equivalent to our potatoes.

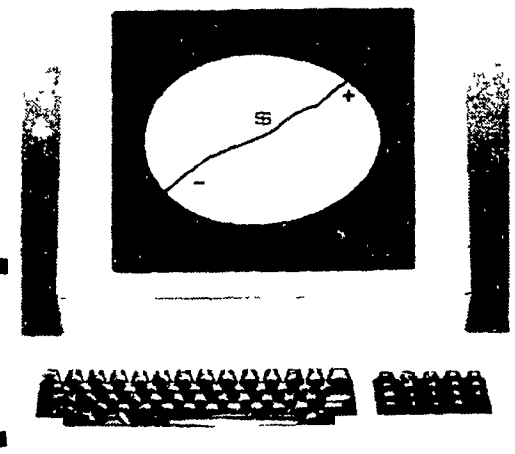
MARKETING MORE PROFITABLE EGGS



PROGRAMS FOR PROFITS

How to produce more profitable eggs.

Bigger is not always better — especially when it comes to profitable egg production. Extra Large and Jumbo eggs sometimes aren't as profitable as Large eggs. Here's why:

Jumbo eggs take 15 percent more feed than Large eggs. Extra Large eggs also require more feed to produce. Premiums paid for these eggs usually don't pay for the extra feed costs.

The larger the egg, the weaker the shell. That means more checks and cracks. So, you get paid for fewer eggs.

You're paid much more for Large eggs than Medium eggs because of the strong demand for Large eggs. The more Large eggs you sell, the higher your profits.

So when it comes down to the bottom line, profits increase in proportion to percent salable Large eggs produced.

Local markets vary.

Price spreads between sizes can really affect profits. Each market may have a different "ideal" egg size and case weight.

Egg size in relation to case weight.

There is a direct relation between percent of each egg size (Small, Medium, Large, Extra Large and Jumbo) and case weight.

Table 1 shows this relationship.
